A Problem That Really Hits Home

Housing Crunch Hurts Everyone

The single-family home, once the centerpiece of the American Dream, has evaporated for most of us.

Increasingly, government officials and the general public are becoming aware that housing is a concern, not just in well publicized areas such as Southern California, but — with crime, unemployment and inflation — a major national problem.

In San Mateo County, according to 1970 census figures, a mere 10 per cent of all families earned yearly incomes above $25,000. And with the average home's assessed value now $63,500, the math is painful: Unless you are rich or already have a home to barter, look someplace else to live. And you may have to look very, very far.

The crunch hits everyone.

Affluent older families complain that their married children cannot afford to bring up grandchildren nearby. Others chuckle with glee when they sell a house for $70,000 that they paid $20,000 for 30 years ago — until they try to find something similar.

"We only bought because things were so inflated on the west side," said Diana Kalvig, who, with her husband, bought a $41,000 35-year-old home on San Bruno's east side three years ago. She figures it is worth $70,000 now, but she would not consider selling it.

"Our problem is, there's nowhere to go. The area is becoming rundown, but we can't afford to let go of it."

Young couples, who with two incomes manage to swing a down-payment by saving or borrowing from their parents, get into the all-important house only to find themselves prisoners of it: $500-plus house payments eat up too much of their paychecks for much of anything else.

"It used to be that couples starting out would move to Santa Clara Valley or San Jose," said Ed Husan, an assistant vice president at Wells Fargo Bank. "Now they're moving toward Fremont. They are spending 25 per cent of their gross income on housing and that doesn't leave much for anything else."

Unemployment in the building and construction trades, according to Robert Gilmore, financial secretary-treasurer and business manager for the county trades council, is, with union members who have dropped from the job force, about 50 per cent.

Builders say that government is one of the prime reasons why housing is so expensive.

In Belmont, for example, the building permit fees for a 2,000-square-foot house include $207 for the permit itself, $103.50 for a plan check, $4.25 for the state's seismographic fee, $10.35 for microfilming, $12.45 for insulator fees, $25 to $40 in excavating fees, $7.50 for power pole fees and $750 per dwelling unit for sewer hook-ups.

Total: a minimum $1,120.05.

School districts are losing enrollment as the number of school-age children drops, both because of the declining birth rate and the exodus of young families to less expensive areas such as San Jose and Fremont.

According to county figures, the number of residents under age 19 will drop roughly 37,000 by the end of the decade. More teachers will be out of work; more districts stuck with empty classrooms.

Older areas are feeling growing pressure for higher density zoning. In San Bruno, for example, residents of the Lomita Park and San Bruno Park neighborhoods, regarded by realtors as prime targets for eventual leveling and replacement by condominiums or townhomes, fought tooth and nail during August and September for down zoning.

The residents, most of them older people, crowded City Council chambers session after session during Planning Commission hearings on the Land Use Element of the general plan, which is being upgraded.

The residents wanted their areas changed from high to low density residential zoning. And they won, at least tentatively. Assuming the City Council seconds the commissioners' judgment, the two neighborhoods will have stalled, at least temporarily, higher density development.

Nevertheless, pressure will continue to build. Many of the same persons argued against allowing The Place apartments in San Bruno to expand. Over their heated objections, the City Council approved the expansion.

Resident Ruth Harris, speaking at one of those meetings, voiced the feelings of many of those who opposed the development: "We don't need more people," she said. "We don't need the area to grow. Gradually, it's not the area you moved into."

The matter apparently will not end there. Opponents are circulating petitons in San Bruno to qualify the issue for a city referendum.

"Increased density will increase our taxes and they're getting to the point where it's almost impossible to pay," said Marjorie Rogers of the San Bruno Park area. "We just feel that we're being discriminated against by the pressure for apartments.

"So far, people haven't been pressured into moving. Many of us who are just over the line are going to be forced to move. I've lived here 32 years. We don't know where to go," she said.

Another resident, Tina Toschi, has been retired 1½ years and is on a fixed income. She says her property taxes, $600 last year, will increase $200 this year.

"I'm going to do everything that I can because it will be cheaper to hang onto my home. I cannot get the equivalent of my home," Miss Toschi said.

Many residents, Miss Toschi included, say they are constantly pestered by real estate salesmen anxious to market their houses.

"A couple of years ago, I switched to an unlisted

Council Again Delays TV Franchise Action

For the second time in two weeks, action on whether to cancel the operating franchise of Vista Grande cable television company was again postponed Monday by the city council of Daly City — this time until Dec. 27.

A public hearing on the issue, which had managed to drag on for some eight hours over two meetings, was closed Monday and the matter put over until the public hearing late in December.

The city is attempting to determine whether the cable television company has lived up to its franchise agreements to provide reliable citywide service to citizens.

CATV officials argue they have made significant headway in clearing up problems of the past afflicting the system and contend patrons are now getting much improved reception and service.

A number of patrons last week submitted a petition to the city council attesting to their satisfaction with the system.

Observers predict the council will split on the question of whether to terminate Vista Grande's franchise, or allow the company to continue.

Some council members are expected to keep the pressure on by demanding Vista Grande's ouster. Others will perhaps take a more moderate course, insisting that the cable company continue its ongoing campaign of upgrading equipment, service and reception, observers said.

In other action Monday, the Council:

• Directed that an environmental impact report (EIR) be drafted for construction of an office building on John Daly Boulevard and North Mayfair Avenue. This EIR may take 90 days and be responsible for increased building costs, officials close to the matter predict.

• Agreed to have its staff meet with Mrs. Rena Gonzalez and others concerning refurbishing of a city-owned building at 101 Peoria St. to be used for a children's day care center.

The city wants the building brought up to code.

Cost of this work is estimated at $5,000.

Who will pay for the repairs is the question now confronting the council.

The city thinks the day care center should pay.

But Mrs. Gonzales and her supporters feel it is a city-owned building and the city should pay.

If the city insists it not pay for the upgrading, then at least the monthly rent of $300 should be lowered, Mrs. Gonzalez says.

"I think $101 would be an appropriate rental figure," Mrs. Gonzales said. "That's the same as the address — 101 Peoria."

Good Intentions Just Extended

A self-imposed and experimental 11 p.m. curfew set by the Pacifica City Council to keep its meetings from extending into the early morning hours has been permanently enacted.

The council voted unanimously last week to continue the 11 p.m. meeting deadline and to hold leftover agenda items, the ones the council coudln't aqueeze in before 11 p.m., to the next evening.

The council voted in June — after several meetings that went past midnight and one that ended at 3:30 a.m. — to set a curfew for its regular meetings, held on the second and fourth Mondays of the month.

Since that curfew, the council has extended meetings past 11 p.m. as often as it has adhered to the deadline.

Councilman Nick Gust in particular protested that the method of continuing agenda items to the next evening forces him to hold open four nights a week for council meetings.

Councilman Mark Savage said he simply gets too tired to think correctly in the late evening and early morning hours.

The council voted to continue its policy indefinitely — and then proceeded to meet until 1:30 a.m.

Longest Meeting

Daly City recorded its longest city council meeting Monday — from 7 p.m. until shortly before 2 a.m. Tuesday.

Heretofore, Daly City's public sessions have concluded long before midnight.

Two lengthy public hearings are blamed for the unusual long meeting, City Manager David Rowe said.

DC Bus Routing Skepticism Aired

By FRANK LaPIERRE

The questions asked were to insure he wasn't just dreaming, the elderly Daly City resident explained during a public hearing on proposed bus routes in the community held Monday night at City Hall.

"I've heard this talk about an upgraded bus system operating in Daly City for about 10 years. Now, it looks like it will finally happen," the man, who asked not to be identified, explained.

Others among the more than 70 persons listening to Al Cianfichi, director of planning for the San Mateo County Transit District (SamTrans), echoed the man's sentiments.

By Jan. 3, 1977, the red, white and blue buses of SamTrans will be rolling over six proposed routes throughout Daly City, Broadmoor and parts of Colma. Cianfichi explained.

Currently, the routes are covered by Northgate Transit Company which agreed last month to sell out to SamTrans for some $70,000.

For 25 cents (ten cents for elderly and handicapped), riders will be able to travel in safety and comfort to all points of the city, SamTrans officials pointed out to the public.

There were others attending the Monday session, that told the council they felt those persons living in the northern fringe areas of the city — Southern Hills, Geneva Avenue and Bayshore districts — will be getting the short end of the transit deal.

William Bacon, resident of the Bayshore District, feels the routing through his neighborhood is inadequate and he asked SamTrans to reconsider.

District officials explained service will increase in some areas as more buses become available.

Otherwise, the overall system will be dependable and a system "you can count on," Cianfichi said.

By mid-spring — March or April — SamTrans will take over Greyhound Company routes along both the "inner peninsula" and coastside, providing agreement can be reached between the two agencies and the Public Utilities Commission.

Utilities can be reached between the two agencies and Counciman Victor Kyriakis, chairman of the city's Transportation Committee, explained to Bacon that San Francisco's Municipal Railway service might also augment SamTrans in the Geneva Avenue-Bayshore are a district with their buses.

But Bacon opposed such dependency on the SF Muni.

Pointing out that citizens of his neighborhood are taxpayers in San Mateo County, Bacon said "Muni has never given us good service.

Ambulance Firms Prepare For New Paramedic Service

By JANET PARKER

Several San Mateo County ambulance companies were forced to tighten their belts in anticipation of the start of countywide paramedic service today.

Bay Area Ambulance closed down its Pacifica office and other companies are cutting back employes.

The company owners, most of them in business in this county for 20 years or more, are anticipating that their businesses will drop sharply.

Beyond that, they aren't too sure what will be the effect of Medevac, the Los Angeles company contracted by the county to provide paramedic and emergency transportation to San Mateo County residents.

Ambulance companies have been relegated to non-emergency transport, such as carrying patients to and from hospitals.

The five county ambulance companies — Mercy-Peninsula, Silva's, Palo Alto, Bay Area and California — have mixed ractions to Medevac.

W. L. Briggs has been running the Bay Area Ambulance Co. for 28 years. It has been one of the largest ambulance companies in the county with two satellite stations and a main office in Burlingame.

Briggs employed 12 full-time and four part-time ambulance attendants until Medevac was secured by the county Board of Supervisors in August.

Today, Bay Area Ambulance has only six employes. Four employes were hired by Medevac and four simply quit because the excitement and challenge of emergency transport and assistance no longer exists.

"Right now, everything is a big 'if' for us," Briggs said. He's not sure if his 28-year-old company will survive the implementation of Medevac. He's certain only that business will drop severely.

The Pacifica station, he said, was the least active of those he and his partner operate.

"However, it provided a very important function for the community," Briggs said. Most of the Pacifica calls were for emergency transport, Briggs said. When it became apparent Bay Area Ambulance was going to lose more then half its employes, he decided to close that Coastside office.

He now rotates his employes among the three remaining stations.

Non-emergency service will be provided to Pacifica residents from South San Francisco and Daly City stations. As a result, Pacifica residents will be waiting a little longer for non-emergency service.

Not only is Briggs losing old employes, but he is finding it difficult to recruit new ones. No one, it appears, is interested in being an ambulance attendant just to provide routine transportation service.

Use of State Funds

CSM Probe Launched

State Assemblyman John Vasconcellos has begun an investigation into the use of nearly $1 million of state money by the San Mateo County Community College District.

The funds are being used to help finance the construction of a district administrative office on the campus of the College of San Mateo.

The money, which came to the district via SB 1641 during the last session of the legislature, had been intended to bolster community college programs and to help resolve some financing problems involved with adult education, Vasconcellos said.

He has termed the local district's use of these funds as a "seeming betrayal of legislative intent."

Earlier this month during a meeting of a permanent subcommittee on postsecondary education in San Diego, Vasconcellos criticized the district's use of the money in strong terms, stating that, "You just ripped off the taxpayers by almost a million bucks."

Vasconcellos was speaking to College of San Mateo President Dr. David Mertes at the time. Mertes was trying to explain why the district has chosen to use the state aid in such a way.

Vasconcellos said he was also interested in determining how much money California community colleges have accumulated in their reserves and how much interest is being obtained on that money.

He is further seeking more information on adult education fees.

The president of the San Mateo district's board of trustees, James Tormey, has responded to Vasconcellos' charges involving the district office.

Tormey defended the board's action and said, "Not one item of the educational program or the already settled salary schedule was affected."

Tormey noted that Vasconcellos received much of his information about San Mateo's situation from a local chapter of the California Teachers Association.

Said Tormey, "I believe that those who 'fed' in the information to get the response they desired owe an apology for failing to give all the facts."

Condition Critical for Shooting Victim

Daly City resident Jerome Blackburn is reported in critical, but stable condition today at San Francisco General Hospital after being shot in the face while sitting in his car near Candlestick Park at about 8 p.m. Monday.

According to police, the 22-year-old Blackburn apparently had been attempting to pull out of a parking space in front of 2484 Griffith St. and in the process was hitting the cars both in front and behind his.

One witness told police he went up to Blackburn and asked him what he was doing. According to police, the witness was rudely told to leave, and did. Then, said police, the witness heard a shot and looked back and saw Blackburn slumped over the steering wheel.

Swine Flu Attacks Are Very Sudden

If you are one of the millions of Americans who, for one reason or other, have decided not to submit to swine influenza vaccination, how will you recognize the disease if you get it?

According to virologists and epidemiologists, the onset will be sudden and dramatic.

You may be perfectly well at noon and sick as a dog by dinner time. Your muscles may ache and so may your head. You may have diarrhea.

Your temperature may be as high as 104. If you are a typical case, your disease will run its course in from four to seven days.

But residual damage to your lungs may take several weeks to heal. Pneumonia rarely develops, but it is that which most often kills.

If you experience all of this you may have type A New Jersey (swine) flu, but chances are even greater you won't.

The trouble with influenza is that there are a score of different viruses that produce the same type of all-purpose symptoms.

You may have swine flu or you may have A Victoria or a B strain influenza or a whole variety of unrelated viruses called rhinoviruses (they're responsible for the common cold), or you may have an adenovirus of which there are 35 recognized types.

In fact, there are more than 300 viruses which infect humanity.

Many of them can cause clinically indistinguishable respiratory infections.

After all, the lung has a limited range of responses it can make to an infection.

"When a patient comes to the hospital and presents symptoms of a viral infection," Dr. Michael Oxman said, "and by doing the best physical examination around and the best general laboratory tests, we still can't be sure if it is influenza or an adenovirus or a rhinovirus or many other things."

How in the world then are we ever going to know if there really is swine flu this season or not?

"We need to know if we are having a swine flu problem and we need to know if the vaccine is working," Oxman, a virologist and professor of medicine at the University of California at San Diego School of Medicine, said.

"And the way we will find out is highly specialized and expensive and will be done only in certain places. We will try to isolate the virus in the patient and grow it. And if we can grow it we will be able to identify it and give it a name."

And chances are strong that the name of that virus is more likely to be Victoria than swine, which won't make you feel any better.

In many instances, Victoria can make you sicker than the swine flu, especially because the swine strain hasn't had a chance to move around much among humankind.

Victoria is here. It was here last year and it is almost certain to return. This summer — winter in the Southern Hemisphere — was what one public health officer called a ripsnorter.

If you are 60 and older (65-plus in other states) or if you are chronically ill, you may get the bivalent vaccine for protection against both Victoria and New Jersey or swine.

If you are under 60 and healthy you are entitled to only the swine flu vaccine.

But no matter which you get, the vaccines are only about 70 per cent effective. That is, even though vaccinated you still can get the flu (either one), although you probably won't be as sick.

Prevent Theft Of New Bikes

One of the most cherished gifts a child can receive on Christmas is a bicycle, but it can also cause heartache if stolen, State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger reminds parents.

"Surely the safest way to prevent the theft," he said, "is to purchase a strong lock and encourage the youngsters to always use the lock and to keep the bicycle in garages or some other safe spot when not in use."

He explained that if a bicycle is stolen, the California Department of Justice is available to assist law enforcement in possible recovery through a computerized stolen bicycle recovery system, which between April and September, 1976, recovered 6,145 stolen bicycles.

In order to make use of the system, it is necessary for purchasers to obtain the brand name and serial number of the bicycle, which should be kept in a safe place at home. If the bicycle is stolen, the brand name and serial number should be furnished to the local law enforcement agency for entry into the system.

An additional safeguard is the obtaining of a license from local authorities — where available. This registration number also proves helpful in recovery.

Younger also urged parents to emphasize the following rules to their children.

Keep the bicycle in good mechanical condition.

Obey all traffic rules and signs and always give proper hand signals.

Walk your bicycle across busy intersections.

Always ride with the traffic — as close as possible to the right side of the road.

Be sure the roadway is clear before entering.

Only one person should ride a bicycle — no passengers.

If you must ride during darkness, make sure the headlight and rear reflector are working.

Select the safest route to your destination and use it. Busy streets and intersections should be avoided.

Yield the right-of-way to pedestrians.

Gift Idea

The Peninsula Art Association is preparing gift certificates for presenting a Christmas gift of 10 art lessons — tuition for the winter session which begins in January.

The certificates may be mailed, with a follow-up brochure of class descriptions or they may be picked up at the San Mateo Arts Council office, Twin Pines Cultural Center, 1219 Ralston Avenue, Belmont.

Housing

number because real estate men were calling to try to get the house," said Yvonne Grigoire of San Luis Avenue.

Even though they consider themselves victims of the pressure for more homes, at least these elderly are better off than many others who don't own their own homes.

James Major, for example, moved in August to a $170-a-month, one bedroom apartment in San Mateo when his $142.50 apartment in Westlake went up to $187.50.

A 64-year-old Civil Service retiree, he spends more than half his gross income on a place to live. He considers himself "more free" after selling his furniture since he can be more flexible about his lodging. If rent in San Mateo goes up, he will take a room with cooking facilities in Santa Clara County or San Jose.

"It's really bad for older people," he said. "Decent housing for older people is hard to come by. It's tragic when you have to put out everything just for a place to live."

"It's a sad commentary on our society that you can work all your life for a house and then can't afford to live in it," said Frederick R. Craig, loan guarantee officer for the Veterans Administration in San Francisco.

Craig said he believes that both the elderly and young people who have never owned a home should receive government subsidies.

Even with the guaranteed loans the VA provides veterans, inflated monthly payments have made the loans virtually useless in some parts of Northern California.

To meet the housing crisis, would-be buyers, as well as lenders, are becoming increasingly "creative." Or desperate.

Lenders report a boom in second mortgages. Some are offering experimental plans such as the variable rate loan to make it easier for buyers to get loans.

The buyer manages to qualify but usually he pays more over the long-run.

"Sure we can juice you into a loan," said Charles Turner, president of First National Bank of Daly City. "The question is, should you (take the risk)?"

Some new owners are sacrificing one of the privileges of ownership — privacy — and are sharing their castles with co-owners or renters. Others look to mobile homes for cheaper housing, although there are few vacancies in the county.

Others with still less to spend are forced to be even more "creative." Calls from young families with children who want to rent a 35 by 8-foot or smaller trailer at Golden Gate Motel & Trailer Park in Daly City are becoming more and more frequent, according to owner Ruth Hulse.

Most of her tenants are elderly people, including one 97-year-old woman. Other housing is simply beyond their reach, she said. The park rents only spaces, not trailers. Children are not allowed.

And at the very bottom of the economic scale among the most ill-housed in the county are farm workers, according to Carlos Baltadano, county chief of housing and community development.

For 1½ years the county has been working on a program to provide 75 homes for workers on the Coast. Unfortunately, it has been stymied. Relief is unlikely for another two years.

"The housing problem is acute throughout the county," he said. "Since 1970, the median value of a home has gone up 60 per cent, much more than wages."

Baltadano predicts that, unless the federal government recognizes housing as a national crisis and reverses the trend, communities will see drastic changes by the year 2,000.

"Psychologically, people in places like Atherton might want to see low income people just leave the area," he said.

But what will happen when the San Francisco International Airport, the county's major employer, cannot find sufficient numbers of semi-skilled workers living within commuting distance to continue operation, he asked.

Even if people lower their expectations and get used to condominiums or townhomes, available housing will fall woefully short of demand by the year 2,000, he said.

Unfortunately, federal emphasis is now on rent subsidy programs or rehabilitation of existing houses, Baltadano said. But unless government takes on housing as a regional — even national — problem and adheres to a long-term program, housing will reach crisis proportions in many more areas of the country, he said.

"For most Americans, a house used to be a dream," Baltadano added. "In this county, it's become just a dream."

Next: The building trades.

Ambulance—

Probably hardest hit by a countywide paramedic plan is California Ambulance Service. The small company shut down its San Carlos office in August, just after the Board of Supervisors hired Medevac.

Four-full-time employes were laid off, leaving the company with only two attendants.

Only the Belmont office remains open.

"We expect a great loss of business," owner Harold Rattliff said.

The future of the company is in limbo, he said, adding that he is not sure what his company's role will be.

Another one of the big county companies, Mercy-Peninsula Ambulance, is feeling the Medevac crunch.

Joe Railton, manager, said the company is planning to close two of its three South County offices — probably those in East Palo Alto. The third office, in Belmont, will remain open for the time being.

The company also has lost nearly one third of its employes. Until recently, 30 attendants were employed. By the time Medevac is in service there will be about 18.

Railton said the company chose to close those two particular South County offices because they receive the highest percentage of emergency service calls.

"Right now, we are trying to maintain our level of service," he said. "We intend to stay in business."

But that may be a challenge.

"We really don't know what to expect. It's a gloomy picture," he said.

Medevac, he pointed out, has placed some of his former employes. Mercy was one of the companies that bid to provide county service but its bid was not accepted.

The Daly City station, Railton said, has usually operated three and four ambulances a day. That station will probably be cut back to two ambulances.

Neither Silva's Ambulance Service based in San Mateo or Palo Alto Ambulance Service expects that Medevac will have any adverse effect on its operations. Officials from both companies said they do not expect to lay off personnel or close offices.

David Theone, emergency services medical administrator for the county, said it's his understanding that all the companies will stay in business since they signed a four-year contract with the county for non-emergency service.

Company officials said they are uncertain what their role will be in emergency transport. Theone said the company may continue to accept emergency calls placed by people who are unaware of Medevac. However, the ambulance companies will no longer be reimbursed by the county when a customer is unable to pay his emergency service bill.

Medevac will charge $110 plus $1.50 a mile for emergency service. Ambulance companies are now charging close to that amount.

Theone said companies can get out of their contract with the county providing they give 60 days notice.

When a private company does accept an emergency call, it will be expected to alert the police and fire departments in that city so that some kind of help is on the scene within four minutes, the maximum response time.

The companies which are facing economic problems as a result of paramedic service in this county seem not to be bitter about their losses or their potential losses.

Briggs pointed out that he was among those who bid for the county contract. Evidently, he said, Medevac's bid was better.

"After all, it is a free enterprise system," Briggs said. His company could lose as much as two-thirds of its business, he said.

Claudia Balcon of Palo Alto Ambulance Service said the county's plan will only improve ambulance transportation — as long as Medevac and the ambulance companies cooperate.

Guest Speaker Loves Literature, Performing

Michael Bossier, guest speaker for tomorrow's book review, being sponsored by the Friends of the Daly City Library, is a man of varied talents, and that should make the review lively and refreshing.

Mrs. Olga Canada, the review chairman, notes that Bossier attended Skyline College before he began his studies at San Francisco State, where he mixes his love of literature with an enjoyment of performing.

In his off-campus hours, he maintains the same balance of interest by working as the assistant manager of the Little Professor Book Store in Westlake and working as a performer, and director at the Spaghetti Factory in San Francisco.

Tomorrow, he will blend his talent as a performer with his knowledge of new books and discuss "Books for Holiday Giving" beginning at 10 a.m. in the Coral Room of the Westlake Library.

Mrs. Cecelia Enright is in charge of the coffee hour which will precede the review. Members and guests are welcome.

MEMBERS OF THE Mary's Help Hospital Guild will relax, following the strain of presenting the fabulous "Boutique de Noel," with an evening of fellowship with members, their spouses and friends on Saturday, Dec. 4.

The guild will hold its annual Holiday Cocktail party in the Broadmoor Community Center between the hours of 6 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

Mrs. Peggy Crandall, Mrs. Lee Stringer and Mrs. Annabelle Piercy are the co-chairpersons for the party. Reservations are necessary and tickets, costing $4 each are available from committee members.

CANDY CANE LANE, the annual Christmas Boutique sponsored by the Riordan Guild, will open with a Wine Tasting and Preview Sale on Saturday at 7 p.m. in Chaminade Hall on the Riordan High School Campus.

Mrs. Ronald Robles, publicity chairman, assures everyone that a great variety of handcrafted items, including holiday decorations, gifts, toys and baked goods will be available at the preview and the next day when the boutique officially opens at 11 a.m. Tickets for the Wine Tasting are $2 each and may be purchased in advance from Mrs. Richard Forsland or Mrs. Thomas Miller. Mrs. Raymond Ray is the chairman and the co-chairman is Mrs. William Feeley.

Sunday the sale will run from 11 a.m until 4 p.m. with the Wine tasting scheduled to conclude at 9 p.m. on Saturday.

Mrs. Alene Filarski, chairman of the Daly City Garden Club's annual Christmas dinner, has announced that the holiday event will be held Dec. 7 in the Hope Lutheran Church promptly at 6:30 p.m.

Special attraction will be the Hope Lutheran Church's youth choir which will entertain with Christmas carols, according to Mrs. Peter Alba, the publicity chairman.

THE WESTLAKE Catholic Women will present a Christmas Boutique and Cookie Candy Sale on Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 11 and 12, in the parish hall of Our Lady of Mercy Catholic Church.

Mrs. John Hughes will chair the boutique portion of the sale and Mrs. William Miller will chair the cookie and candy sale, according to Mrs. George San Pietro, publicity chairman.

Salespeople will be on hand following Mass on Saturday evening and following all Masses on Sunday.

SEVERAL LOCAL youngsters will have featured roles in the Lakeside Presbyterian Church presentation "The Christmas Jazz" to be presented at 4 p.m. on Sunday, December 12.

Westlake's Karen Weis will sing the role of Mary. Gary Borghello will perform the part of the Centurian and Ned Kjeldgaard and Kelly Heath will be Israelites in the 65-participant production.

The public is invited to attend this program, which will be directed by James Groves and Cindy Young. Accompanist will be Karen Heather.

Immediately following the musical the Lakeside Handbell Choirs will sponsor a Spaghetti dinner to raise money to send the Jubal Ringers to the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers Festival in Tacoma, Washington.

Tickets for the spaghetti dinner are being sold for $2 for adults, 75 cents for children 6 to 12 years of age and 50 cents for children under 6 years. Tickets may be purchased at the door or from members of the Jubal Ringers or the Camapana Ringers.

Mrs. Solvig Ross and Mrs. Isabel McCool are in charge of the dinner.

MEMBERS OF THE Daly City Senior Citizens enjoyed a tour of the East Bay during a pre-holiday junket.

Mrs. Louise Buttle reports that the club chartered two buses and took a full day to see the John Muir Park and home near Martinez and then visit the old granery in Port Costa and dine at Juanita's.

A Heated Insurance Session

A discussion of a self-insurance program prompted a heated union-administration exchange at a Jefferson Union High School District board last week.

Mary Ballard of the American Federation of Teachers said the program should be placed on the negotiating table if the district management wants to keep to the principle of "good faith bargaining."

Silence greeted Mrs. Ballard's remarks and it appeared to nettle the AFT woman.

"I have a right to ask for a response," Mrs. Ballard said sternly.

Deputy Supt. Harold Tonini then told Ballard that the district would be happy to consult the AFT and keep the union informed of the program.

"However," Tonini said, "there is nothing in law which says a teacher organization has the right to pick an insurance carrier for the district."

Business and Operations Asst. Supt. Robert Watt said that he had determined insurance procedural matters with the county and would make a recommendation on the program at the board's December meeting.

A feasibility study conducted by the district recommends a self-insured program for workers' compensation, quoting other school districts — including San Diego, Long Beach, and the Oakland Unified School District — and public agencies that have successfully adopted this method.

Among the advantages of a self-insured program, according to the study are greatly reduced costs for participants, speedier claims and payments handling, improved investigation of questionable claims and improved loss control services.

The study failed to reveal any public agency in California that had been unsuccessful with the program.

JUHSD currently carries state compensation insurance and will require $125,302 for 1977-78 premiums.

WATER SAVER

To conserve water, Anna Hubert of Pacifica installs a shower orifice being distributed by the Belmont County Water District as part of the pilot program of the San Mateo County water awareness committee, Ed Anderson, center, a director of the Belmont County Water District, and Tom Hunter, executive of the Plumbers Union Local 467, look on.

Code Approved

Jefferson Union High School District Board of Trustees last week unanimously approved a conflict-of-interest code Tuesday night after Supt. Floyd Gonella told them the code had to be submitted to the Board of Supervisors by Dec. 1.

Gonella said the trustees may modify the code later, subject to the supervisors' approval.

The code — an offshoot of the 1974 Political Reform Act — imposes criminal penalties for those officers or employees making financial gain as the result of their decision-making while working for the school district.

District personnel must file annual disclosure statements, revealing real property interests, investments and management position.

Gonella won the trustees' approval for his suggestion to delete certain sentences in the code which related to the 12 months prior to the effective date of the code.

Career Event Is Scheduled

The scheduled time for the "Career Brunch" on Dec. 5 at the Brotherhood Way Jewish Community Center has been changed to 10 a.m.-noon. This program for teenagers will feature Kurt Heckscher, a certified public accountant, and Ms. Susan Solomon, public relations person for the Jewish Welfare Federation.

Lox and bagels are included in the nominal charge of $1 for center members, $1.50 for non-members.

To register for Dec. 5, call the Brotherhood Way Center.

Lorvan Heads Committee

Pacifica's mayor pro tem, Sidney Lorvan, has been elected chairman of the newly-organized Oceana Recreational Facilities Agency.

The action came during a joint Jefferson Union High School District/Pacifica City Council meeting last week.

Jefferson trustee John Sloan was named vice-chairman of the agency which will mainly oversee matters relating to the swimming pool being built at Oceana High School.

New Teen Program

Teenagers now have a new way to spend Thursday nights — at "Junction," the Brotherhood Way Jewish Community Center's newly-named teen group.

Every Thursday, from 7:30 until 10 p.m., Junction will meet to plan activities and relax in the Junction lounge.

The group's kick-off activity will be a Kosher-style Buffet dinner and "paint-the-lounge sleep-over" Dec. 10 from 6 p.m.

The Brotherhood Way Center is at 655 Brotherhood Way, San Francisco.

Samuel Chandler

By SAMUEL C. CHANDLER

Lewis and Clark did not take a medical doctor with them on their famous trek across North America, but they did carry a letter from Dr. Benjamin Rush that contained "a few short directions for the preservation of health." An examination of the directions presents an interesting lesson in the development of personal hygiene.

To Lewis and Clark, the doctor wrote: "When you feel the least indisposition, do not attempt to overcome it by labour or marching. Rest in a horizontal posture. Also fasting and diluting drinks for a day or two will generally prevent an attack of fever. To these preventatives of disease may be added a gentle sweat obtained by warm drinks, or gently opening the bowels by means of one, two, or more of the purging pills."

"Unusual costiveness (constipation) is often a sign of approaching disease. When you feel it, take one or more of the purging pills. Want of appetite is likewise a sign of approaching indisposition. It should be obviated by the same remedy."

"In difficult and laborious enterprises and marches, eating sparingly will enable you to bear them with less fatigue and less danger to your health."

"Flannel should be worn constantly next to the skin, especially in wet weather."

"The less spirits you use the better. After being wetted or much fatigued, or long exposed to the night air, it should be taken in an undiluted state."

"Molasses or sugar and water with a few drops of the acid of vitriol (sulphuric acid) will make a pleasant and wholesome drink with your meals."

"After having your feet much chilled, it will be useful to wash them with a little spirit."

"Washing the feet every morning in cold water will conduce very much to fortify them against the action of cold."

"After long marches, or much fatigue from any cause, you will be more refreshed by lying down in a horizontal posture for two hours, than by resting a longer time in any other position of the body."

THE JOURNALS OF LEWIS AND CLARK show that they disregarded most of Dr. Rush's rules. Rather than follow them, they treated the ailments that bothered their men with the medicine they carried with them or with that which they could manufacture. So their journals record that they spread a poultice of bark and gun powder over a man who had been bitten by a snake.

Sometimes Lewis drew blood out of his ailing soldiers to relieve them of "blood volume". Sometimes he poured saltpeter into them, or medicines made of crushing bark or plants that grew along the way. When the soldiers caught venereal diseases, Lewis and Clark gave them calomel (mercurious chloride) for their sores, or treated them with pewter urethral syringes.

When an Indian boy froze his feet in forty below weather, he turned to Captain Lewis for an amputation that cost the boy the toes on one foot. When Sacagawea's son was ill, Lewis and Clark brought him around with cream of tarter (potassium bitartrate), flowers of sulphur and onion poultices. They also treated him with enemas and a "plaster of salve made of the rozen of long leafed pine, and of bees and bear oil mixed."

The record of the medical side of Lewis and Clark's journey may be found in an interesting anthology entitled "The American Heritage Book of Great Adventures of the Old West." (American Heritage Press) which was published in 1969 and is still in print.

CSM Play Tells of Humanity

The College of San Mateo Theatre season opens Dec. 3 with an innovative production of the Thornton Wilder play "The Skin of Our Teeth."

It can be seen at 8 p.m. also on Dec. 4, 10 and 11 in the CSM Little Theatre. Tickets at the door are $1.50 for general admission and $1 for students.

The play is a humorous attempt to tell the history of humanity in three acts.

Wilder uses elements of satire, symbolism, and theatre of the absurd to convey his optimistic message that civilization can withstand catastrophies both natural and manmade.

The CSM production is more an extravaganza than a simple play. Director Ken Ross utilizes many special effects to enhance this already fascinating literary work. The large cast includes Pat Heselton, Janet Lee, Pamela Lloyd, Mark Logan, Keith Malmborg, Natalie Murphy and John Sanford as the principal characters, nine ensemble actors each playing many roles, and seven dancers.

The following members of the cast are from San Bruno: Judy De Kom, Ronele Kieran and Josette Cruz.

For further information contact Ken Ross or Irene Griffin, 574-6285.

Mental Health Priorities Eyed

An all-day forum Dec. 4 at the College of San Mateo will look to needs, resources, goals and priorities in mental health services and the planning needed to put them together.

Entitled "Community Mental Health: A Plan for All Seasons," the forum is co- sponsored by the Mental Health Advisory Board and the college's Community Education Office.

Held on the day designated by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors as "Mental Health Planning Day," the forum is open to all in the county concerned with the issues.

Chairperson Phoebe Rowles stated that "it is hoped that the day-long program will serve as the initial step in establishing a permanent working relationship between the community and the Mental Health Advisory Board."

Results and conclusions of the program will be translated into recommendations from the Advisory Board to the County Mental Health Division and are expected to be included in the county's three-year plan for mental health services.

The forum will convene at 9:30 a.m. for registration and coffee in the Choral Room, Building 2, on the College of San Mateo campus.

Following a welcome by the chairperson, John Ward, county supervisor, will speak on the need for community involvement. Other participants include Dr. Robert Rankin, program chief of the county's Mental Health Division, and Dr. Rudie Tretton, chairman of the Committee on Citizen Input. Most of the day's format will involve small group discussion.

Participants may bring a bag lunch or purchase lunch from a mobile vendor.

Coast Guard Seaman Apprentice Thomas M. Liston, son of Frances Liston of 452 D St., Colma, has completed recruit training at the Coast Guard Training Center, Alameda, Calif. He joined the Coast Guard in July 1976.

Possible Ballot Measures Varied

County supervisors agreed last week to consider putting a host of measures on the March 1977 ballot, including charter amendments to make the elective offices of county schools superintendent and coroner-public guardian appointive offices.

The board continued until Dec. 7 their discussion on what proposals they will formally introduce on Dec. 14 to place on the ballot.

Other measures for which at least one supervisor or more indicated initial support include:

• A measure to make county supervisors elected by district rather than countywide.

• Another bid to split the district attorney's office into two divisions, one with a D.A. and one with a county counsel.

• A charter change to remove the requirement of appointing various types of professionals to the county health and welfare board.

Supervisors also indicated they are seriously considering formation of a charter review committee to "modernize" the charter. Any charter changes must be approved by the voters.

Supervisors, noting that five charter changes went down to defeat decisively last Nov. 2, seemed to be adopting an attitude that advance campaigning may be necessary.

Senior Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald said charter amendments passed on previous occasions because committees conducted hearings in the cities.

Spokesmen for both the League of Women Voters and Government Research Council offered to volunteer their resources for charter review and community presentation.

Meanwhile, County Schools Supt. J. Russell Kent appeared to support the tentative proposal to make his position appointive.

Supervisor John M. Ward said that Coroner-Public Guardian Paul B. Jensen also supports a proposal to make his office appointive.

Ward said that making Jensen's position appointive would give the supervisors the opportunity to split the administrative responsibilities if they so deemed necessary.

Dr. Kent said that his position was elective long before that of county school board members. State law provided for the election of county school board members in 1954.

A charter change would allow school board members to appoint a superintendent, as school districts in the state do.

Supervisor Jean Fassler called the split of the district attorney's office "an absolute must" and also rated what she called the "coroner's problem" as an issue which "we must tackle now."

But Fitzgerald, apparently referring to the defeats of previous bids to split the D.A.'s office, commented, "I have great reluctance to put an issue back on the ballot which has been defeated."

On Dec. 7, supervisors also will consider putting before voters whether to dissolve the harbor district.

Education Center Clears Issues

San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn ruled Friday that there are no further legal issues to challenge the purchase of the controversial outdoor education site near Pescadero by County School Supt. J. Russell Kent.

The judge, issuing a ruling on a summary judgment and demurrer, outlined issues that remain in the lawsuit.

Judge Cohn struck from the suit a paragraph which noted that the San Mateo County Grand Jury and other organizations opposed purchase of the property.

He called that paragraph "nothing more nor less than a blatant attempt to insert political matters into a legal proceeding."

The plaintiffs, Earl Crockett, Edward Campinotti, and the South Coast Committee, were given 30 days in which to amend the suit in accordance with Judge Cohn's views.

The judge ruled that the only issue in which the original owners of the property can be held in the lawsuit involves repayment of interest received prior to the time Kent supplanted the County Board of Education on the contract of purchase. The ruling means that that issue must be resolved by trial.

(The Board had purchased the 274 acres, but Judge Cohn ruled that they couldn't. When Kent substituted his name as purchaser, Judge Cohn upheld that).

Other issues which were left for what legally is known as the "trier of fact:"

• As to Kent, the amounts spent for development of the property in such items as architect's fees and an environmental impact report.

• As to the Board of Education, payment of interest prior to being supplanted on the contract of sale by Kent and those issues relating to development of the property.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Do I need to remind you that this is the first week in December and that the time for Christmas baking is upon us?

This week we will talk about quick breads. Besides being delicious and easy to make, these attractive breads, with nuts, raisins and all sorts of goodies in them make wonderful gifts.

Dark and spicy, with raisins and nuts in abundance, this bread is a tasty treat.

RAISIN AND NUT BREAD

1 cup uncooked, finely ground oatmeal
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 cups flour
¼ cup sugar
1 cup raisins
¾ cup chopped nuts
1¼ cups sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
¾ cup molasses

Place the one cup uncooked oatmeal in blender, whir until finely ground.

Sift together the two cups flour, one-fourth cup sugar and one teaspoon baking powder. Mix in the ground oats, one cup raisins and three-fourths cup chopped nuts.

Mix the one and one-fourth cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda and three-fourths cup molasses and add to the dry ingredients. Blend and pour into a well greased loaf pan and bake in 350-degree oven for one hour.

Let stand in baking pan for 10 minutes, then turn out to cool completely before wrapping.

Of the many varieties of quick bread that I bake, this next one is my favorite. Not just because it is the easiest to mix and fix, but I love the combination of colors and flavors in this good bread.

CRAXY QUILT BREAD

½ cup sugar
3 cups biscuit mix
1 egg
1¼ cups milk
1 teaspoon anise seeds
¾ cup chopped nuts
½ cup mixed candied fruits

Heat oven to 350-degrees. Grease a 9x5x3-inch loaf pan.

In mixing bowl combine the half cup sugar with the three cups biscuit mix. Mix the one egg and one and one-fourth cups milk. Pour into dry ingredients. Beat vigorously for 30 seconds by hand. (The dough will look rather dry and lumpy, but not to worry.) Blend in the one teaspoon anise seeds, one half cup candied fruit and three-fourths cup chopped nuts.

Pour into prepared pan and bake in 350-degree oven 45 to 50 minutes. Use tooth pick to test for doneness.

Let stand in baking pan for 10 minutes then turn out to cool completely.

Senior Lunches

Lunches for senior citizens in San Mateo County are served Monday through Friday at noon at five sites.

Donations for these meals are 35 cents for persons aged 60 and older and $1.25 for those under 60.

Transportation may be arranged through the following lunch locations:

• St. Francis of Assisi Church, 1425 Bay Road, East Palo Alto.

• Fair Oaks Community Center, 2600 Middlefield Road, Redwood City.

• Martin Luther King Recreation Center, 725 Monte Diablo, San Mateo.

• Lincoln Recreation Center, 901 Brunswick St., Daly City.

• St. Paul's Methodist Church, 500 Miller Ave., South San Francisco.

• WEDNESDAY - Macaroni and cheese, mustard greens, stewed tomatoes, bran muffin, applesauce.

• THURSDAY - Stuffed green peppers with cheese, mixed vegetables, tossed salad, rice, stewed prunes.

• FRIDAY - Tomato juice, beef hash, wax beans, peas, buttered noodles, apricots.

Girl Scout Swimming

Thursday, December 2, is Brownie-Junior Girl Scout swim night from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Jefferson High School pool.

Each girl must have a green Girl Scout permission slip, be 48 inches tall, and one adult must accompany each six girls. All volunteer lifeguards' rules will be obeyed.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday, December 3, 4 and 5 the first Junior Girl Scout mini camp will be held at the Bothin Youth Center and will be entitled "The Lively Arts." Girls attending will conclude with a live performance for their parents on Sunday.

CALIPSO music and American folk dance were on the agenda for the recent Daly City Area Girl Scout Association meeting which was opened by Chairman Mary Ann Dale who introduced group leader Mrs. Betty Jane Jones of Half Moon Bay. Improvisation was stressed as adults used Band-aide cans as maraches.

Mrs. Carman Fry (775-5731) is still taking troop reservations for a Heritage Faire scheduled for January 29, 1977. Girls are encouraged to plan arts, crafts, games, dramatics, etc. which explain their own individual and/or troop heritage. Location will be announced.

Pacifica Cyclist Killed

An 18-year-old Pacifica youth died Thursday night at Mary's Help Hospital, Daly City, of head injuries he sustained in a motorcycle-car accident earlier in the evening in Pacifica.

According to Pacifica police, Douglas Edward Delost was injured when his motorcycle, equipped for riding off the highways collided with a vehicle driven by Daniel Dance, also of Pacifica.

Police said they and fire department units responded to an accident call at 1240 Par Pacifica Boulevard shortly after 6.

Delost was lying on the road, and first aid was administered at the scene by police and fire department personnel, officials said.

According to police, the youth was taken to Mary's Help Hospital, where he died at about 10 p.m.

Firemen Face 'Moonlighting' Charge

By JANET PARKER

Fire fighters who spend their off-duty hours working in construction jobs are becoming a thorn in the side of the county Building and Construction Trades Council.

Council members have brought their grievance to the Central Labor Council, of which both fire fighter unions and the council are members, and are hoping that upcoming face-to-face meetings will result in agreement.

The Building and Trades Council is to meet Dec. 14 with representatives of the various fire fighters' unions in the county to iron out their conflict.

Council business representative Bob Gilmore said both parties are hoping to resolve the issue within their organizations.

"Rather than fight this thing out in the newspapers, we thought we would handle it internally," Gilmore said.

The council has been particularly distressed with fire fighters who they believe are taking jobs that would normally be held by union construction workers.

Gilmore wrote in a recent letter to South San Francisco Fire Chief Lawrence Toellner that construction workers in San Mateo County have suffered 50 per cent unemployment this past year and that, "It is very disconcerting to see already employed fire fighters doing our work."

"How can any fire fighter hold down a strenuous job like construction on the outside and still give the taxpayer their money's worth while fighting fires?" Gilmore asked.

In his letter, he urged Chief Toellner to take action "to eliminate these second jobs for fire fighters or terminate the offenders before they ruin the reputation of the whole department."

Gilmore said he can recall that there has always been a problem between fire fighters throughout the county and the building and construction workers.

His council recently was told by the CLC to work out the problem with fire fighters at their own level, with the CLC serving as referees.

The December meeting will be the second time the firemen and the building and construction leaders have met.

"It appears to be more of a problem lately than before," Gilmore said. "Some of it is because some of the fire fighters have become a little more bold."

The problem, he said has become too big to ignore.

Through meetings, he said, the council hopes to gain the sympathy of the fire fighters who also are unionized.

"We hope they will realize the plight of their brother worker," he said, adding, however, that the council does not expect that it can entirely eliminate the offduty jobs of firemen which conflict with the potential employment of construction workers.

Bob Roesch, president of Firefighters Local 2400, said neither party had intended for their meetings to become a public issue. And, he added, the firemen aren't out to antagonize the building trades workers.

Roesch said it is impossible for the union, which represents 450 fire fighters from 11 of the county's departments, to police all its members. Local 2400 leaders do ask their members who hold outside jobs to carry an additional union membership for the work they are performing — whether it be in the building trades or otherwise.

"We can't just tell them not to work on the side," Roesch said.

He said he needs more specific information from the council — how many employes are "moonlighting" and how many are knocking building and trades workers out of jobs.

"Basically it's just accusations at this point," he said. "I believe things will be ironed out very rapidly."

Gilmore said that the off duty work performed by several South San Francisco fire fighters triggered the council's concern and finally the face-to-face meetings.

Gilmore referred to one fireman in particular in South San Francisco who allegedly runs a non-union general contracting business accepting work all over the Bay Area. That man has refused to discuss the allegation.

But Ray Green, president of Local 1507 representing South San Francisco's 70 fire fighters, said it's unfair to single out firemen in the entire employment field.

He said there is not one professional field that doesn't include people who hold jobs on the side. Teachers, bank tellers and sales people frequently hold additional jobs, he said.

For that matter, he said, construction workers also hold second jobs on occasion.

"Our country is based on that idea," he said. "How hard an individual works determines how far he gets in the world."

Fire Chief Toellner said his city and some others already have a method of keeping track of off-duty jobs. All city personnel who plan to hold a second job on their offduty hours are required to file for a permit from the city manager. The chief evaluates each permit application and makes a recommendation to the city manager.

Three permits have been granted to fire fighters in the last two years, he said.

"The American tradition is for a man who wants to get ahead to go out and work several jobs at once," Chief Toellner said. He pointed out that in other professions, a second job is considered industrious or ambitious, but the fire fighter is accused of moonlighting.

As far as he is concerned, there is no problem. If it appears a fire fighter's off duty job will conflict with his city responsibilities, he won't get a permit. Right now, the chief added, he has no idea how many fire fighters have off-duty jobs, and what's more, he doesn't care.

South San Francisco firemen — like most in the county — work an average 56-hour week. In South San Francisco, they are on duty 24 hours and off duty 24 hours for three shifts. Then, they are off-duty for four days.

Gilmore said he's hoping for some positive action from the fire fighters' union leaders.

"We want to keep it on a friendly level," he said.

Fassler, Lyon In Transition

County Supervisor Jean Fassler has announced a transition program for the Fifth Supervisorial District which will allow Supervisor-elect Fred Lyon to share her office space in the Hall of Justice, effective immediately.

Lyon, who has been attending board meetings, coming in for briefings, and getting acquainted with county staff, will be putting in some regular office hours between now and Jan. 4, when he will be officially sworn in.

"Having access to staff and information, and getting prepared for a takeover is important, so I have extended this courtesy to him," Mrs. Fassler said.

"Hopefully, he'll be here more than I will be," she said.

Lyon, a 39-year-old San Mateo attorney and El Granada resident, won the Fifth District seat in the Nov. 2 election, beating Daly City Councilman McRobert Stewart 108,857 to 84,951 in the countywide vote.

Lyon will succeed Mrs. Fassler, who decided she would not run again for office, having served three terms.

Ironically, it will be the first time in 12 years that there will not be a woman on the Board of Supervisors at a time when one or two women will be serving for the first time on boards of supervisors in other Bay Area counties.

Mental Health Group Moves

New headquarters for the Mental Health Association of San Mateo County is One Peninsula Place, San Mateo.

Evelyn Marks, public relations director for the association, said the new headquarters is in the series of office buildings known as One Peninsula Place, but has a mailing address of Suite 214, 1730 South Amphlett Blvd.

An invitation to visit the new offices, just north of the Royal Coach Motor Inn is extended to the public, Mrs. Marks said.

The Mental Health Association is an organization of volunteers who work toward improving attitudes about the mentally ill, improvement of mental health services and prevention of mental illness.

The association manages Parental Stress Service, a 24-hour hotline to help family members deal with anxieties.

Wilderness School Slide Show

What a night! Coming up on Friday, December 3 at 6 p.m. in the Serramonte High School Little Theater is the Serramonte Wilderness School's annual slide show.

The evening features John Olmsted, a freelance environmentalist from the University of California Extension, who is working on a hiking trail which will cross America.

A special treat of the evening will be the appearance of the singing trio and combo "Jouletaire", featuring Serramonte students Julie McKenzie, Laura Velasquez, and Teri Small.

The cost, including organic refreshments, is a $1 donation for the Cross California ECO System Hiking Trails. Children under 12 will be admitted free with an adult.

Try to attend this program for your own enjoyment as well as pledging support to the Wilderness School students.

Do you know that smoking causes lung cancer, emphysema, chronic bronchitis, kills an estimated 300,000 people in the U. S. alone each year and causes much irritation, discomfort, and illness to many non-smokers?

Do you also know that there are over 5 million adult cigarette smokers in California; nearly 30 million persons have stopped smoking in the U. S.; and over half of all cigarette smokers say they want to stop?

Many Serramonte students learned these facts when they participated in "The Great American Smokeout" on November 18.

The "Smokeout" was a day to stop smoking and was sponsored by the American Cancer Society. The main emphasis was on the positive aspects of not smoking for even one day.

Serramonte students participated by asking people not to smoke on the 18th. If the person agreed, he was given a pledge card to sign and then to carry or wear. The pledge card read, "I promise not to smoke on Thursday, November 18, 1976."

Serramonte school nurse Mrs. Nancy Kraemer said that there was good student response to this program.

Two students, Lori Nalls and Ken Campbell, won records donated by Flip Wilson for getting the most pledges.

"The Great American Smokeout" was extremely successful and Serramonte students will undoubtedly participate in even larger numbers in similar programs in the years to come.

Congratulations to Robert Foiles, who was honored by the Daly City-Colma Exchange Club as Serramonte "Student of the Month" for October.

One student is chosen every month from each of the local schools for this award.

Robert received a certificate, attended an Exchange Club luncheon, and has the opportunity to compete for an Exchange Club scholarship at the end of the year.

How would you like to see Rome, Florence, Paris, Amsterdam, London, and the Swiss Alps?

A group of Serramonte students are going to Europe this summer with the Foreign Study League and will visit all these places.

The advisor for the Serramonte students summer excursion is assistant principal-guidance Mrs. Laurie Cahill. For more information call 992-9555.

Many things were accomplished at the last meeting of Serramonte's P.T.S.A. (Parent-Teacher-Student Association)

Harold Shurgin, a Serramonte science teacher, was nominated as one of the three vice-presidents. Ron Darling, a parent, was elected auditor.

Other appointments were Julie Smith, public relations head; Mrs. S. Bugler, membership head; Ruth Galindo, legislative head; and Robert Foiles, manpower pool head (a group of students to help with mailing things to parents).

The group also decided that its goals are to be an adivsory body to the school administration, give aid to the school, and to provide scholarships and funding for special programs.

'Water Gardening' Is Not for Beginners

By IVA NEWMAN

We have been having considerable trouble with gophers in our rose beds and told a rosarian friend, a doctor, about it. He suggested that we go into Hydroponic or water gardening.

He grows his roses very successfully in bushel baskets filled with sawdust to which he supplies nutrient solution at regular intervals. His results are outstanding but he has years of training in the use of chemicals while we have confined our studies to commercial fertilizers and the feeding of plants via the soil. However, people living in condominiums and apartments might find this a way to have fun gardening.

The National Garden Bureau has this to say about hydroponics. "Hydroponics or 'water culture' was perfected many years ago by plant scientists as a system for growing plants in sterile sand. By omitting one element at a time from the nutrient solution, scientists were able to duplicate the plant hunger symptoms that sometimes occur in nature. They were also able to estimate the approximate amount of each plant nutrient needed to complete the life cycle of several important food and ornamental crops."

Over the years, a small but enthusiastic group of hydroponic gardeners has been using nutrient solutions to grow commercial and hobby greenhouse crops without soil. Most are producing just as good or better crops than can be grown in soil or prepared planter mixes. Most are born tinkerers and innovators who enjoy designing and installing the tubes, oxygenators, pumps, and tanks that are required to grow plants hydroponically. They like the predictability of hydroponics and the neat, clean, odorless approach to growing flowering plants and vegetables.

Some promoters have pushed hydroponics as the ideal growing system for all home and commercial growers. They have generated a few very successful operations. They have also persuaded a number of inexperienced persons to set up commercial greenhouses which failed because of unrealistic expectations, inadequate market studies and long-term financing. A number of home gardners have tried hydroponics and given up.

These failures are not due to any shortcomings in hydroponics; the system can be made to work efficiently and economically.

Gardening

Most failures result from hydroponics being promoted as a simple procedure. It is emphatically not, yet any mechanically adept person who did well in high school or college chemistry can master it.

Complete nutrient solutions and oxygenation are required to grow hydroponically. Three classes of nutrients are needed: major, secondary, and minor or "micro." Nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium are the majors; calcium, sulfur and iron the secondary nutrients. Micronutrients include magnesium, manganese, copper, iron, zinc, boron, molybdenum, copper, cobalt and chlorine. Other elements rarely cause deficiency problems because they creep in as impurities in other elements, in water or in greenhouse dust.

Plants can be rooted in gravel or suspended on mesh just above the water level. The level of nutrient solution in the tank can vary from several inches deep to a shallow film, but should be kept moving to reduce the growth of algae and to promote oxygenation. Also, the concentration of nutrients in the solution has to be kept low for safety. Circulating it gives plant roots more opportunities to absorb snacks of whichever nutrient they need at a particular time.

Perhaps the most frequently encountered difficulty in commercial hydroponics is the failure to monitor changes in the concentration of total nutrient salts in the solution and their proportion, one to the other. Plants are selective about specific nutrients they remove from the solution. A few days of good growing weather can add a great deal of tissue to fast growing plants and drastically change the makeup of the nutrient solution.

The equipment for precise tests is so expensive that it is usually restricted to universities and professional soils laboratories. Consequently, amateurs simply replace nutrient solutions every two weeks or so and pour the spent material around trees and shrubs.

Before attempting to formulate homemade nutrient solutions, beginners should confer with a commercial distributor of specialty fertilizers for greenhouse and nursery use. These firms usually sell at wholesale only, but will often agree to a cash and carry sale. They will not ship a bag or two of fertilizer. Some offer 25 pounds bags of water soluble multiple nutrient fertilizer, balanced for liquid feeding, and separate blends of soluble micronutrients. You must follow the manufacturer's and distributor's recommendations explicitly when mixing solutions to avoid precipitating the nutrients or changing the pH so that certain nutrients are made less soluble.

Watch the classified ad sections of general home garden magazines and plant society bulletins. You will occasionally see mail order ads for small packages of broad spectrum water soluble fertilizers. Most "garden variety" fertilizers are not completely soluble in water; make sure that the materials that you order will dissolve fully.

Recent advances in growing plants in lightweight mixes using liquid feeding or long-lasting controlled release fertilizers have blunted some of the interest in hydroponic growing. Containers of artificial soil need no special pumps or oxygenators because each time the plants are watered, air (oxygen) is surged through the root ball. Algae seldom become troublesome in artificial mixes.

Hydroponics can be a challenging and rewarding hobby for innovative, resourceful gardeners but it is not for the average person who has trouble remembering the pH scale and that NaCl is table salt.

Leafspot May Affect Ivy

Leafspot has been disfiguring a number of Peninsula ground cover plantings of English ivy. David L. Hansom, farm advisor for San Mateo and San Francisco Counties gives some good information on this problem in "Growing Points" a Central Coast Counties publication.

He reports that Bacterial leafspot caused by Xanthomonas hederae is a common disease of English ivy (Hedera helix) in landscape masses It is also troublesome in commercial production of plants. In the very early stages of the disease, the spots on the undersides of the leaf appear as small, round, light-green, translucent areas. The spots increase in size and become dark brown or black and are visible from both sides of the leaf. The tissues at the margins of the dark spots may become reddish in some varieties of ivy. Young stem tissue is also susceptible to infection and cankers may form as the stem matures. Only Hedera helix is susceptible to infection by the bacterium.

The bacteria enter the leaf tissues through stomata or wounds. The incubation period varies from 5 to 21 days depending upon temperature, humidity and age of the inoculated tissue. Under warm, moist conditions, bacterial ooze may exude from infected tissues; however, this is not often observed since the ooze is easily removed by water. Bacteria are spread by splashing water and mechnically by handling and tools.

Chemical sprays including copper fungicides and streptomycin have not been successful in controlling the disease. Disease-free propagation material coupled with good sanitation is the most effective methods of control. Cuttings should not be taken from production areas, especially where the disease occurs. Apparent leafspot-free cuttings may carry bacteria on the surface or as undetected stem infections.

Hanson says that although this disease may affect the general appearance of a planting, he has not observed it to be lethal in this part of California.

Information for propagating stock free of this disease is available from farm advisor offices.

Colorful Native Plants

Plants can't read, but there are several native plants that seem to know California's official colors are blue and gold.

Create a spectacular spring color combination with the blooms of ceanothus and frementia. Fremontia is a tall growing shrub with dark green foliage and showy golden yellow flowers. Several varieties of ceanothus bloom at the same time creating masses of blue. Varieties such as Sierra Blue, Ray Hartman and Mountain Haze grow rather tall, maintaining the same rapid growth rate as the fremontia, and in combination make an effective screen planting.

Fremontia used alone as a backdrop planting for intermediate varieties of ceanothus. May Lake and Julia Phelps also create an excellent effect.

Ground covering ceanothus varieties, Carmel Creeper and Point Reyes make excellent covers for slopes. A seeding of California poppy in the uncovered spaces makes a colorful spring effect until the ceanothus grow together.

Good drainage is a must for natives and a little knowledge about soil management to create the best growing conditions is useful. Dig extra deep holes and use a good, loose planting mix with sand, soil and humus. Do not put rocks or gravel in the bottom of the hole to make drainage better. This practice does not help drainage because water will not travel from a fine soil texture to coarse material until the fine soil becomes over-saturated. The water just stays there, creating an impossible situation for the roots of most plants.

Fall is the traditional time to plant natives and seed wild flowers because they will have all winter to establish their roots. Native trees and shrubs should be cared for much as any other planting the first two summers. After that, many drought resistant natives require no watering. Others require occasional watering, so be sure to check with your nurseryman for the specific watering need of the plant you plan to buy.

Christmas Show Due

The Josephine D. Randall Museum Society will holds its 16th traditional Christmas Show and Boutique Dec. 3, starting at 10 a.m. at 199 Museum Way, San Francisco.

There will be a sale of plants, gourmet foods, Christmas supplies, tree ornaments and handicrafts of many varieties.

An arrangement program, "The Spirit of Christmas," will be presented by Mignonne Austin. Mrs. Austin is known in London and the Bay Area for her knowledge and flair in the art of flower arranging. A silent auction of her arrangements will follow the program. Lunch will be available at the snack bar.

Reservations for the program may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Lillian Lee, 738 22nd Ave., San Francisco, 94121. There is no admission charge for the displays and boutique sale.

One Window Set on Fire

According to the fire department, firemen went to Cabrillo School shortly after 10:30 p.m. when they received a call from school district personnel who were cleaning the school.

Fire officials said that apparently the window — made of plastic — was set afire, but the fire did not extend beyond the window.

VICTIM'S POSSESSIONS

Authorities are asking for help in identifying the body of a young woman found off Whale Cove on the Coastside this week. She wore this jewelry collection.

Clues Sought to Identity

The coroner's office still doesn't know the identity of the young female whose body was discovered Sunday at Gray Whale Cove on the south edge of Devil's Slide.

Coroner's investigator James Donovan said that the victim apparently didn't have her fingerprints on file anywhere, so matches are impossible.

He described the victim as between 20 and 23 years old, 5 feet 6, and 135 pounds, with red hair (possibly dyed) and blue eyes.

The woman was wearing a gray-white flowered midriff blouse, dark brown cord pants, knee-high dark stockings and dark brown suede oxfords with heavy crepe soles.

Donovan said that the woman wore this jewelry: a yellow metal ring, plain band; a white metal ring, raised design, simulated pearls; a white metal ring, split, with an inside mark reading "Isrial;" a white metal bracelet, twist pattern; a yellow metal necklace, 15½-inches, with six small white stones and one large blue stone; a white metal necklace, 15-inches, with a one-inch mother of pearl heart; and, a white metal earring with a blue stone and a white metal earring with a sea shell.

The woman apparently had fallen some 300 feet from an ocean cliff.

Petitions Filed To Keep Chope Open

Petitions signed by more than 40 persons urging that Chope Community Hospital in San Mateo be kept open for the care of indigents were presented to County Supervisors Tuesday by Patricia L. Howard of Redwood City.

The board is scheduled to decide Dec. 21 whether to keep the hospital open or to switch to decentralized clinics for outpatient care and use nearby private hospitals for in-patient care.

Mrs. Howard, in an accompanying letter to supervisors, said that she uses Chope for her medical care by choice.

The petitions urge supervisors to keep Chope open both as a center for acute in-patient care and as a center for out-patient care.

"I have chosen to entrust my health and my life to the mentioned medical facilities because there I receive respect, efficient service and medical expertise," Mrs. Howard wrote. "Will I have all that at other hospitals? I doubt it."

She called Chope "one of the few hospitals that provides care to everyone, regardless of race, color, creed or financial ability."

She questioned whether physicians at other hospitals will be willing to accept MediCal, Medi-Care and modified repayment plan patients.

"A doctor in private practice must not only be the healer of the sick but also a businessman," she wrote. "He must concern himself not only with welfare of the patient but also with how he will be paid for his services.

Jury Sets Slaying Trial

A jury of seven men and five women was impaneled last Wednesday to hear evidence in the trial of William Rucker, charged with murder in the rifle slaying of a candy clerk in Redwood City last August.

Superior Court Judge Gerald E. Ragan gave jurors Friday off because of the Thanksgiving holiday, so testimony in the case will begin Monday.

Rucker, 18, of Redwood City, is accused of killing Bonnie Jean Baumann, 55, of South San Francisco, during an alleged robbery from See's Candy Store, 2360 Broadway.

Rucker, represented by attorney Richard Minkoff, has pleaded not guilty.

It took Minkoff and O'Leary two days to agree on 12 jurors to hear the case. Two alternates were also chosen. O'Leary is seeking the death penalty against Rucker.

Minkoff indicated through his questioning of jurors that the testimony of psychiatrists and the state of drunkeness may play roles in the defense. He asked some jurors if they had ever been drunk.

O'Leary quizzed several jurors on their views about psychiatry, as well as the death penalty.

A death phase of the trial would ensue only if jurors found Rucker guilty of first-degree murder.

Bus Driver Fired; Stunned Riders Fired Up

By RICK SULLIVAN

A routine fender-bender involving a San Mateo County Transit District bus driver and a 19-year old man has rocked the city of Millbrae.

The bus driver has lost his job, the 19-year-old has received a death threat against his life and the citizens of Millbrae are mobilizing with transit district directors.

Angry Millbrae residents are planning to attend a SamTrans directors meeting next month to protest the firing of bus driver Jocko Garcia and demand that he be reinstated.

Mrs. Francis Nordfeld, who is carrying the Garcia banner, said she would present the board with a petition signed by some 350 residents who believe the driver was unfairly punished for failing to report a vehicle accident.

Millbrae bus patrons consider Garcia the best, most courteous and conscientious driver the city has ever had. They believe he has become a victim of his own deep-seated compassion.

Wednesday, Oct. 20, was Garcia's red letter day.

He was driving one of the district's recently refurbished early model buses down Clearfield Drive, a steep city street, and veered left onto Tioga Drive when he noticed a car traveling up the hill toward him.

According to Garcia, as he was coming around the turn, a car being driven by Paul Ferreira of South San Francisco hit the side of the bus.

Both vehicles, Garcia says, pulled to the side of the road.

The bus driver maintains that Ferreira asked him not to report the accident because "he had some problems with his parents and an insurance company."

Garcia claims that he balked at the youth's request, but said when Ferreira's eye began to water and when his pleas for compassion became more intense he changed his mind.

"I figured there would be no sense in getting the boy in more trouble for such a minor accident," Garcia says. "And besides, the bus was old and already banged up. It has been hit in the rear."

Garcia says there were no passengers in the bus at the time of the accident and he noticed no witnesses.

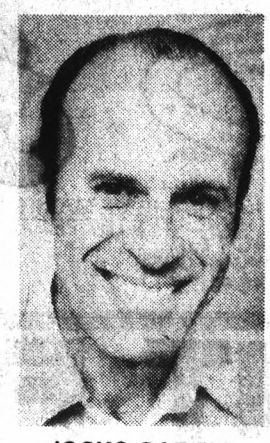
The bus driver completed his shift that day and returned to his modest apartment in Burlingame.

That night he got what he termed a surprising telephone call. It was from the evening dispatcher at the district's North County bus yard.

The dispatcher advised him that a man had reported that an accident had occurred involving Garcia's bus.

"I knew right there that my good deed had backfired," Garcia says.

Garcia claims that the dispatcher told him that Ferreira stated that the bus had hit the car.



JOCKO GARCIA
Fired driver

"He turned the whole thing around," the driver commented resignedly.

Garcia drove to the bus yard that night and made out an accident report.

He worked all day Thursday, Friday, Saturday and the following Monday, before he heard anything more about the accident.

After his Monday shift, he was told by his supervisor that he was to report for a "hearing" at SamTrans administrative offices in San Mateo.

He was ushered into the office of H.A. Ruffoni, executive assistant for SamTrans. Garcia says Ruffoni merely told him that it was a violation of district policy to fail to report an accident and that he was fired effective immediately.

"I know that I did wrong," Garcia admits, "I broke a rule and I should be punished. I can see them suspending me without pay, but to fire me, I just can't believe it."

James Gallagher, spokesman for SamTrans, called the Garcia incident "regrettable." He said it was "particularly painful" for the district to fire Garcia "because he was such a good driver."

"Everybody recognizes the human element to this whole incident," Gallagher comments. "But one has to look at the tremendous liabilities for the district.

"One can just see the infinite possibilities for ruinous consequences for a district whose drivers only report the accidents they want to," he adds.

Gallagher stressed that the importance of reporting accidents is emphasized to all drivers during their training programs.

"We tell all our drivers during training that failure to report is cause for dismissal," the spokesman says.

Garcia claims that he never participated in district training sessions and was never advised of the consequences of failing to report an accident.

He says he was hired in September 1975 by Airporter Transit, a private firm, to drive buses for Millbrae's municipally owned system. When SamTrans took over the system in mid-1976, Garcia says, the district never sent him to training school.

The Garcia incident has shaken Paul Ferreira. He never imagined that a minor accident would spawn such controversy and that, as a result, his life would be threatened.

"I'm very scared," Ferreira says. "Several days ago a man called me and threatened me. He said 'I'm after you you white honky for losing that man his job.'"

Because of his fear of future reprisals, Ferreira refuses to provide details of the accident. He will only state, "There has apparently been some misunderstanding between parties."

Pacifica Recall Move Underway

By JANET PARKER

A Pacifica woman who has accepted the leadership of a committee to recall three city council members met with attorneys this week to begin the complicated legal process.

Mrs. Betty Wilson said she will hold a meeting sometime next week for community members who are interested in backing the recall of Mayor Janice Fulford and Councilmen Sidney Lorvan and Mark Savage.

She said there are at least 50 Pacifica residents who are interested in forming the nucleus of the recall effort. She already has received checks from some persons who want to help pay an attorney.

"This is not an idle threat," Mrs. Wilson said. "This is something that has been building. It's been going on for a long time."

Mrs. Wilson would not disclose the name of the attorney being consulted about the recall. However, she said he is extremely knowledgeable and has participated in successful recalls in this county.

Talk of a recall has surfaced in the last few months at public meetings and particularly at a Town Hall meeting in September.

But the "talk" turned into action last week when the three council members who are targets of the recall voted against a 97-unit apartment complex that's been four years in the making.

Mrs. Wilson and several other women immediately said a recall effort would begin. They claim the present council majority votes on the basis of its own personal interest and not according to the desires of Pacifica residents.

"I feel the people of Pacifica are being denied proper representation by their council," Mrs. Wilson said. "I never felt we elected gods. I have one and I don't need to elect one."

Several construction projects have been turned down by the council, Mrs. Wilson said, for no valid reason — even when the majority of residents has supported the projects.

She pointed out it took the signatures of 3,000 Pacifica residents and two meetings in which residents packed the council chambers to get the council to turn its street lights back on.

"You can't have 3,000 people involved every time something like this comes up," she said.

Only Councilman Nick Gust is clear of any recall threat. Councilman Stan Farber, who also would not have been a recall target, has resigned.

Mrs. Wilson said she is aiming for the March 8 ballot. It will require the signatures of at least 20 per cent of the city's registered voters to get a recall on that ballot. The San Mateo County Registrar of Voters said there were 15,138 registered voters in Pacifica at last count. The committee would have to obtain about 3,040 signatures for each of the council members involved.

City Manager-Clerk Don Weidner said he has not determined when those signatures should be submitted because, at this point, it is a hypothetical question.

"There's been no evidence that makes us do any research," Weidner said. "We don't go running in to look at the books everytime someone mentions the word 'recall.'".

Those who are talking of a recall have expressed concern that the council majority is preventing Pacifica from normal growth by turning down every construction project that comes before the council.

Mrs. Fulford, one of the recall targets, said Pacifica has absorbed a great deal of growth in the last 20 years and the council must now consider the degree and rapidity of growth.

"There's been talk about a recall for the last two years," she said. "Recall is a word that is thrown about very carelessly." It is an extremely divisive tactic, she added.

Lorvan said he hopes that "no-growth" is the direction in which the city is headed and that's why he has voted as he has.

Savage said community growth must be carefully planned, and development must be looked at on a case-by-case basis.

"If people want a recall, it's perfectly within their right," Savage said. "I doubt that it will be successful."

Mrs. Fulford and Lorvan would face re-election in March 1978. Savage was just elected in March for a four-year term.

Le Pacini

I don't know about the rest of you, but I'm beginning to get fed up with the pundits who are predicting the Giants' demise because they let all-hit no-field Gary Matthews go to that gullible gentleman from the south for a million dollars, because they haven't yet been suckered into giving half the franchise to some above average baseball player, and because owner Bob Lurie is listening to a man who once traded off a .250 hitting second baseman.

Maybe all the pundits are right and Lurie and his chief trader, Spec Richardson, are wrong, but let's give them a chance to prove it on the field before we write them off in print. Convincing an already slightly turned-off public that the Giants aren't going to make it through 1977 isn't going to help anybody.

As for myself, I don't blame Lurie for not giving a fortune away to a .280 hitter. While everybody else is pointing out Matthews' 20 homers and 80 plus RBI, I'm remembering the runs he allowed to cross the plate with his mis-judging of routine fly balls, his mis-handling of ground balls, his throws to the wrong bases, his misses of cut-off men, and of the rallies he killed because he never learned to run the bases with anything else but speed.

Matthews would have had to hit .350 to REALLY help the Giants. He is a tremendously gifted athlete physically. But with few basic skills, and at his age and experience, I doubt that he would have improved his skills appreciatively enough to help the Giants any more in 1977 than he did in '76.

Sure, it would have been nice to sign Joe Rudi, who would have been a Matthews with a glove. Rudi is a damned good professional baseball player, and winner and a team man and all that, but he isn't and never will be a super-star, a man who could single-handedly turn a franchise around. And he certainly isn't worth a million, either, because he is a low-key player and certainly wouldn't have drawn any more fans than did Matthews.

Yes, the Giants needed another power hitter, and now they need two because of the loss of Matthews. But who's to say that rookies Jack Clark and Matt Alexander can't be those power hitters, or that Darrell Evans won't return to form after an off-season and hit his customary 25 homeruns?

Actually, the odds are against all three of these young power hitters failing. Getting rid of Matthews, in fact, may be the best thing that ever happened to both Clark and Gary Thomasson, the latter, who has never really had a chance to develop, and the former, who is right now a better outfielder and baserunner than Matthews will probably ever be.

And, yes, the Giants could use Don Gullet, but what team couldn't? Don't forget, the Giants had pitching enough last year to hold Cincinnati and Philadelphia at bay.

As for the experts who decry the retention of Bobby Murcer because he is immature and sulks . . . well, how many of today's players DON'T. The point is that Murcer is still a fine baseball player, and if Lurie really has talked him into behaving himself, he could be a greater asset than any of those million-dollar free agents.

I don't know where the pundits get their information, but according to two of them, deals were practically clinched for Murcer — before Matthews left — with either the Angels for Frank Tanana or the Phillies for Steve Carlton and another player. Frankly, I don't believe the Angels would have given up such a brilliant young, crowd-drawing hurler as Tanana for a 30-year-old outfielder, or the Phillies Carlton PLUS another player for Murcer. But if those reports are true, it only PROVES the potential of Murcer.

As for Richardson, I frankly am skeptical of the man's track record myself, but let's not hang him now because of the trades he made when he was with Houston, the most prominent of which was the Joe Morgan trade. Maybe Richardson didn't realize the potential of Morgan, but as I pointed out in the paragraph of this column, Morgan was no great shakes when he was actually performing for the Astros.

He might not have ever been a star there, no matter who Houston's general manager was. And don't forget that club owner Judge Roy Hofheinz turned out to be no genius himself, and there have been hints that the judge had at least as much to do with those notorious trades as Richardson. And besides, no one has ever accused Richardson of being stupid. Maybe he's improved, learned from his mistakes, as Morgan did with the Reds.

So let's not make too much of Matthews and Richard son and the free agent draft until the results are in. I have a hunch the Giants may not have needed the draft. Maybe what Lurie saved in not signing people like a 32-year-old third baseman to five years for a million (Finley's right, Bando won't last two more years) he will be giving to budding young stars already on the premisis.

And I really doubt that pennants CAN be bought in the pure sense of the word. Nobody in baseball was richer over a longer period of years, nor more generous with his pocketbook, than the late Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey. Nor was any owner more often frustrated, as Yawkey "bought" just two pennants in four decades.

The experts keep insisting that George Steinbrenner bought the Yankee pennant this year, but the only name player he actually PURCHASED was Catfish Hunter, who, ironically, had his worse season in years. Analyze the Yankee roster and you'll find that the key to Yankee success last season was brilliant trading — in a word, good operation — which is what really won all those other Yankee pennants. ALONG with, of course, money.

Charles Dudley's "straight" statistics are good enough, but when broken down into 48-minute increments, thus indicating what he does in the equivalent of each full game he plays, they are outstanding.

Points, 18.3 (top shooting percentage in the NBA with 62.6); free throw average, 64.1 (the only "bad" stat); rebounds, 7.9 (a small guard?); assists, 8.6; steals, 2.2.

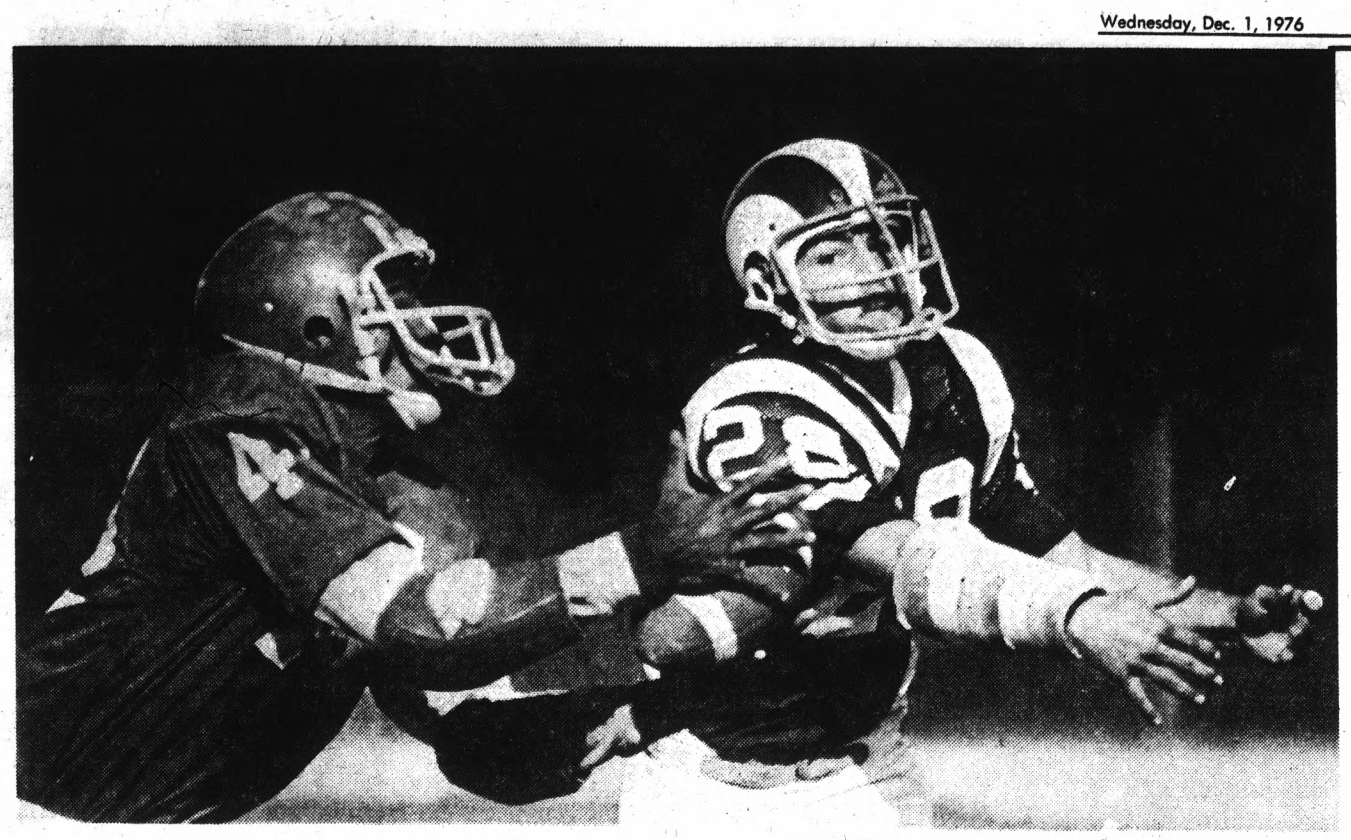
* * *

Credit the 49er defense with one of the most courageous games of the season this year by ANY NFL defensive platoon for hanging in tough in that second L.A. game despite the habit of the offense of managing to keep the defense on the field almost continually.

That brings up Jim Plunkett, and in his defense, throw out that L.A. game and, at least statistically, he is certainly not the best, but clearly not the worst passing quarterback in the National Conference.

Before the Ram game, he stood, among 17 listed QB's, eighth in completions; seventh in completion percentage; sixth, yards; sixth, yards per pass attempt; tied for second TD passes; has the longest single pass completion; and was rated sixth in overall standings by the league office. His only real weak stat was in percentage of interceptions, in which there were only four worse in the conference.

For those of you who believe that the quarterback the Patriots kept, Steve Grogan, is making Plunkett look bad, consider that in the American Conference, of 16 listed QB's, Grogan ranks ninth in completions; eleventh, throwing percentage; seventh, yards; eighth, yards gained per attempt; tied fourth, TDs; has the second highest interception percentage, and rates only twelfth, overall. He does, in fact, beat Plunkett in only completed passes and yards passing, and then only barely.



THE WINNING TOUCHDOWN

Burlingame High running back Byron Hawkins (44) snares a pass from quarterback Rusty McDowell as Westmoor defender Ken Rodriguez swipes — but misses — the ball. It was not a routine play during Thursday's Peninsula Bowl game at College of San Mateo. Hawkins, in photos at right, chugs down the sidelines to score a 25-yard touchdown that gave the Panthers a 21-14 lead in the fourth quarter. Burlingame won 23-14. Below, Panther Coach Bob Booker (right), who just announced his retirement, celebrates with offensive guard Robin Lau (34). Lau, 5-8, 170, was outweighed by the Westmoor defense but was credited with opening some big holes on traps.

Westmoor Upset

Burlingame Wins Prep Grid Bowl

By CHRISTOPHER STAVE
Post Sports Writer

How does a football team make 19 costly mistakes and still win a bowl game?

First, it has a quarterback pass for 231 yards and three touchdowns.

And it has a big fullback shrugging off the pain from a dislocated finger to run for 112 yards.

And speedsters to catch bombs.

And — perhaps most important of all — a tough, alert defense that blunts the opponent's biggest threat and is always ready to jump when that opponent is making costly mistakes of its own.

That's how Burlingame High defeated favored Westmoor 23-14 Thursday in the third annual Peninsula Bowl at College of San Mateo.

Oh, Burlingame made plenty of mistakes. Two touchdowns were lost on fumbles, another on an interception and another promising drive killed by penalties.

But Westmoor made mistakes too — big ones — and Burlingame either capitalized on them or sat on the ball so long that Westmoor quarterback Jack Dorn, the County total offense leader, was seldom able to get his team moving consistently.

Actually, it's deceptive to say that Burlingame sat on the ball, though the Panthers ran 74 plays for 401 yards.

Burlingame quarterback Rusty McDowell loves to throw, and indulged himself for his biggest afternoon of the season. Fullback Jeff Black added good balance with those 112 yards, and speed back Byron Hawkins stung the Rams both with his running and his receiving.

Burlingame's defense didn't really stop Dorn in the first quarter — but after that the Panthers' containment got better and better. Dorn completed just two passes in the first half, and in the second half Westmoor's mistakes ruined any chance of continuity.

Burlingame opened the game by driving to the Westmoor 12, primarily on big chunks of yardage by Black. But Ram defender Steve Chudzinski sacked McDowell twice for 34 yards lost to kill the drive.

After an exchange of punts, Panther linebacker Brian Peagler intercepted a Dorn pass and returned it 30 yards to the Westmoor 17. Two plays later McDowell found tight end Dan Williams crossing left to right, all alone, and hit him with an 18-yard touchdown pass for a 7-0 lead.

Westmoor responded immediately with a 64-yard second quarter scoring march. Lone running back Mike McLennan broke loose for 13 yards. Dorn scrambled for 17, hit Dave Ramirez for 19 and then ran for 12 more as the Ram line wiped out Burlingame's defensive left side. Dorn eventually scored from the one; a two-point conversion attempt failed.

Burlingame, sparked by a 44-yard bomb from McDowell to Byron Hawkins, moved from its own 27 to the Westmoor 12. But an offensive pass interference penalty took the Panthers out of easy reach, and the drive was thwarted.

Two plays later Burlingame middle guard Tosoni Lavulo fell on a Westmoor fumble at the Ram 22, and Burlingame moved all the way down to the four. But Ram defender Dale Kettner picked off a McDowell pass in the end zone with 0:02 left in the half, leaving Burlingame with a one-point margin at intermission.

On Westmoor's first drive of the second half, Burlingame defensive end A.J. McElroy charged through the Ram front to force a bad pitchout, and teammate Erik Neeley recovered at the Ram 40.

Burlingame nearly put itself in the hole, incurring two straight 15-yard penalties. But on second down and 31 from the Panther 39, McDowell lofted a nice pass down the left side to Peagler, who was alone in the area except for one Ram defender. Peagler gathered in the ball, shoved the defender away with a stiffarm and loped in for a 61-yard score.

Brian Hori's kick made it 14-6.

Again it only took Westmoor two plays to fumble; Burlingame's Dan Williams recovered at the Ram 44, and the Panthers moved to the 15 before being driven back by two more penalties and two quarterback sacks.

Yet another third quarter Burlingame drive carried 63 yards to the Westmoor three. But as Black powered toward the goal line, the ball popped loose and Westmoor's John Smith recovered in the end zone for a touchback.

Then Westmoor, aided by two straight 15-yarders against the Panthers, began to move early in the fourth quarter. After getting position at the Burlingame 21, Dorn hit Chudzinski for 10 yards. Smith skirted right end for 19 more, and Pete Neal scored on a two-yard run. Burlingame earned another penalty, giving Westmoor a good shot at the two-point conversion — and Smith ran for it to tie the game 14-14.

It took Burlingame five plays after that to get the winning score. McDowell, who competed five of his seven second half passes for 139 yards, hit Larry Hawkins for 10. Black ran over the left side for 15. Then McDowell threw his prettiest aerial of the day, right over the shoulder of streaking Byron Hawkins, who sprinted the rest of the way for a 35-yard scoring play.

In spite of a growing dominance (Westmoor seemed to tire, and had suffered a string of injuries), the Panthers didn't put the game away till just 5:16 remained, and even then did it on a mixture of a fine play — and a mistake.

McDowell rolled to his right from the Ram 46, broke past the line, shrugged off a couple of tacklers under heavy escort, and seemed to have a sure 46-yard TD run. But he let the ball go at the five yard line. A Westmoor defender got it, but carried it back across the goal line and downed it -- for a safety.

That gave Burlingame a nine-point lead and possession with the ensuing free kick.

The Panthers drove again, eating up the clock, with fullback John Falk (taking over for Black) picking up good yardage past some nice trap blocks. The drive stalled at the 14 when the Panthers were flagged for another penalty and McDowell got sacked again.

But it didn't matter. Dorn was injured on the next play from scrimmage, and McLennan, who had been a quarterback before moving to the running back spot, hadn't played since suffering an injury on the opening kickoff of the second half. The replacement, with no experience, fumbled the snap and Lavulo recovered.

It was the third straight win for a Mid-Peninsula League champion against the North Peninsula League representative, and vindicated Burlingame — the Panthers had beaten Westmoor 28-21 in the first game of the year but observers had felt that Westmoor had improved more than the Panthers since then.

Burlingame finished the season with a 9-1 mark; Westmoor was 8-3.

Burlingame played perhaps its best game of the year; Westmoor didn't. Injuries didn't help the Rams. Tight end Brian Michelson, who caught 27 passes during the regular season, couldn't play at all. McLennan really couldn't play after suffering a hip injury midway through the second quarter. And Ramirez, who would have covered Byron Hawkins, was injured and taken out just before that picture-book TD pass of McDowell's.

Burlingame Coach Bob Booker, whose retirement was effective at the end of the game, praised the play of his defensive ends and linebackers Peagler and Dan Williams, who managed to contain Dorn far better than they had in the first game.

McElroy was particularly satisfied. "He hurt us the first time, and I kind of wanted to pay him back for that," he said. "I was able to get pass rush pressure from the inside — I saw a gap inside and I'd move inside on his option, so he'd have to turn back."

Black, who'd suffered from a hip problem for three years and didn't play last year at all, said, "I was getting great holes all day — the traps were great. Robin Lau made some nice blocks. Brian Hori made some good traps — the whole front was great."

SFS Trio Concert Dec. 5

San Francisco State University's Artists Series' third presentation in its 23rd season will be a concert Sunday, December 5, at 3 p.m. in the McKenna Theater off Holloway near 19th Avenue by the Bay Area's own group of nationally-acclaimed musicians, the Trio Concertante.

This ensemble consists of violinist Daniel Kobialka, Lecture in Music at the University; cellist Laszlo Varga, a San Francisco State Professor of Music; and pianist-violist Paul Hersch, who teaches at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. Each artist has played and toured extensively during their careers, and as the Trio Concertante has received considerable acclaim for its wide repertoire, ranging from the classes to the most recent avant-garde music.

To illustrate its "new" music programming, the Trio at its San Francisco State appearance offers a world premiere of a newly composed work by Meyer Kupferman of New York. His "Affinities," written just this year, is created especially for the Trio Concertante.

Other selections on the December 5 program include the "Archduke" Trio of Beethoven and the Serenade Opus 10 for string trio by Ernst Dohnany, a post-Brahmsian Hungarian composer-pianist.

This free presentation will be the final 1976 offering on the Artists' Series. However, on February 6, the French String Trio from Paris will appear at the University on this series, sponsored since 1953 by the May Treat Morrison Foundation. It was created by Emeritus Professor Ferenc Molnar, now retired from the San Francisco State music faculty.

Health Chief to Ask Chope Closing

BY DAN COOK

County Director of Public Health and Welfare Dr. George Pickett will ask the county Board of Superviors to close Chope Community Hospital to future acute medical and surgical needs, it was learned today.

Pickett has prepared a report, which has not yet been released, urging the supervisors to contract for such medical needs with exisiting private hospitals.

Pickett's report, currently in draft form, and being circulated among select members of his staff for input, is to be submitted to the supervisors on Dec. 9, at which time Pickett will report on the results of the year-long, decentralized medical care program of the South County Demonstration Project.

The report contains several recommendations dealing with the future of the county's public health care, among them:

• The phasing out of acute medical-surgical care at Chope, and referral of patients needing such care to Peninsula, Mills and Sequoia Hospitals on a contract basis.

• Continuation of the clinic established as a part of the South County Demonstration Project, and an expansion of the facilities there.

• The closure of Crystal Springs Rehabilitiation Center, and the transfer of acute psychiatric patients and those requiring longterm rehabilitation services to the existing Chope facility.

• The remodeling of facilities at Chope with a $6,275,000 bond authorization approved by the voters in 1965, but never spent, to care for psychiatric, rehabilitation and longterm care.

• The establishment of an outpatient-only clinic at Chope, with eventual establishment of such a center in North-Central San Mateo, and the elimination of the clinic at Chope.

Pickett, in an interview with The Times this week, confirmed the general outline of his report, but declined to provide a copy of it "since it is still in draft form, and I have instructed my employes not to release its contents."

Pickett said in the interview that it would cost $8.75 million in 1976 dollars to rebuild Chope as a general medical-surgical hospital, and that because of inflation, the cost over a three-year construction period would run as high as $11.6 million. There is no money available for such a project, he added.

Pickett said that the use of the Chope building for psychiatric patients is dictated because "other hospitals are not equipped to handle acute psychiatric patients."

He said that the building should be remodeled for psychiatric use, because support facilities for such use are lesser than required for acute medical-surgical care.

"They (psychiatric patients) should not be treated in an acute medical hospital because it costs more," Pickett said.

Pickett said the county at present needs facilities to care for 100 to 120 patients requiring longterm rehabilitiation and highly skilled nursing care. He cited a census of 52 patients needing acute medical in-patient services and 50 to 60 acute medical-surgical patients.

Pickett, in an interview which appeared in the Nov. 1 issue of "American Medical News," a publication of the American Medical Association, gave an apparently conflicting view of public health care.

"If the government wants restraints on costs and guaranteed access to care, there is no alternative except to move the entire system into the public sector," Pickett said in the interview.

Asked for an interpretation of this statement, Pickett said he views hospitals with a publically elected governing board, elected by district, to be public hospitals.

Since Pickett declined to supply a copy of his report, it is not yet possible to weigh the statistics and criteria on which he has based his recommendations.

Pickett has promised to make a copy available "as soon as the correct figures are inserted, and the report has been made available to the supervisors."

He estimated that the document may be completed by Dec. 2.

The supervisors may take final action on the question of Chope during Decemeber. A final public hearing and decision is expected on the matter on Dec. 21 after Pickett has presented his recommendations on Dec. 9.

Newly elected Supervisor Fred Lyon, who will take office in January, campaigned on the issue of retaining Chope as an acute medical-surgical facility.

Supervisor John M. Ward has denied published reports that he wants to close Chope, but indicated that the decision "can and should be made before the end of this calendar year, so that Supervisor Fassler, who has been on the board, and who has lived with this issue for 12 years, can be a part of the decision."

Supervisor-elect Lyon will replace Mrs. Fassler on the board on January.

Messages concerning distribution or delivery of the North County Post should be telephoned between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. (589-1234) or sent in writing to the North County Post, 205 W. Angus Ave., San Bruno, Ca. 94066.

Dance Recital, Mini-Preview

The Pacifica Parks, Beaches and Recreation Department will present a dance recital and mini-preview Dec. 11.

The dance recital, "Dance for Joy," will feature dance classes sponsored by the PB&R Dept.

Following the recital, instructors for winter classes offered by PG&R will be on hand to answer questions and display work by students and demonstrate crafts from such classes as crochet and dried floral arranging.

The event will be held at Vallemar School from 1:30-3:30 p.m.

Entertaining Winter Faire Due

Entertainment ranging from a puppet show to opera will be offered during the Dec. 11 and 12 "Winter Faire" at Burlingame Recreation Center.

Coordinator Brock Riddle said "Winter Faire" entertainment will run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., both days, at the center, with displays of arts and crafts and other family activities.

Entertainment will begin with a puppet show each day, and include a concert by the Burlingame High School Band, a showing of silent films, an appearance by the College of San Mateo Jazz Band, the Burlingame Players, and the Burlingame Opera Ensemble.

A Brass Quintet, the Burlingame Intermediate School Jazz Band, folk guitarists and the Helen Hulub Dancers also will appear.

Winter Faire is an annual event of the Burlingame Recreation Department and other segments of the community.

Activities this year include a wreath-making session conducted by the Burlingame High Mothers, a display of art works by Burlingame High School students, displays by 36 professional artists, a variety of foods and delicacies, and prizes.

The public is invited, said Riddle, and admission is free.

County to Join Suit On Funds

County Supervisors voted this week to join other counties in the filing of a lawsuit against the state for funding of social services for medically needy and indigent persons.

Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson reported that on Aug. 28, 1975, the State sent out a letter indicating that claims for the 1975-76 and subsequent fiscal years would not be paid.

The counties are required by the regulation of the state Department of Health to make available social work staff to provide needed social services to the medically needy and medically indigent.

"The counties are supposed to be reimbursed for the cost of such services — 75 per cent federal and 25 per cent state funds for the services to the medically needy and 100 per cent for the services to the medically indigent," Deputy Dist. Atty. Gregory J. Antone said in a memorandum.

The suit is expected to be filed in Alameda County. San Diego, Alameda and San Mateo counties thus far have agreed to join in the legal complaint.

Pacifica Cable Delays Hike

Pacifica's cable television firm, a long-time target of public criticism, has backed away from a rate increase request until the controversy calms down.

Tele-Communications, Inc., general manager J.C. Sparkman of Denver told the Pacifica City Council Monday night his Board of Directors has agreed to do without a rate increase for the time being.

"I was able to convince my board it was a very bad time to put a request in," Sparkman said. The decision, he said, was not made on the basis that an economic need does not exist.

The company said it simply felt that turmoil between the cable firm and the City Council in recent months would make a rate increase request awkward.

In meetings this year, speakers paraded before the council complaining of poor service and at one point the council seriously considered revoking the firm's franchise.

The council continued discussion of any rate increase until May.

That means Pacifica residents will continue to pay $6.25 a month as they have since Sept. 1, 1975.

An increase was granted at that time from the original fee of $4.50 a month. The second phase of that rate increase, a hike to $7.40 a month, was continugent upon TCI living up to certain agreements for improvements of the system.

Assistant City Manager Don Jeffers made it quite clear Monday night he's still not certain TCI has lived up to its end of the agreement as it was supposed to have done by May 1.

Among a list of 12 alleged inadequacies, Jeffers included the company's failure to answer service calls on a same-day basis, to open a local office to handle billing and service requests and to provide the city with total reimbursement for consulting fees.

Jeffers also said that TCI has not provided an approriate audit report by a certified public accountant, the franchise fees are not always paid to the city on time and that reception is poor on channels 8 and 11.

Sparksman answered each of Jaffer's concerns, saying for the most part that the company is attempting to resolve each one.

HE FLIPPED ON THE FREEWAY

Motorists on Bayshore Freeway screeched to a stop Wednesday afternoon after this baby seal suddenly crawled into the freeway traffic. Motorists herded the furry tot off the roadway and summoned Peninsula Humane Society officials. The seal was not injured. After a brief stay at the Society's Coyote Point animal shelter, he will be released to his natural habitat. Officials said he apparently crawled out of the bay near the Millbrae Avenue interchange and for reasons unknown proceeded to the freeway.

Toys Can Be A Yule Danger

A 13-month-old boy was found with his head inside his toy box and his neck over the edge. Trapped in this position by a heavy fallen lid, he had died of asphyxiation.

A 2-year-old boy tripped over the typical clutter in a little boy's room, struck the corner of his heavy wooden toy chest and suffered a serious head laceration.

A year-old girl suffered severe hand cuts when the lid of her toy box fell on her fingers as she reached for a toy.

These are among case histories of more than 2,600 persons injured in a one-year period surveyed by the federal Consumer Products Safety Commission. All were injured seriously enough to require treatment in a hospital — and nearly 70 per cent of them were children under the age of 4.

So serious were many of the injuries that the federal commission is currently reviewing a possible need for mandatory safety regulations governing toy boxes and toy chests as it has done with the safety of the toys inside.

Most toy chest injuries, the commission reports, occur when a child falls against the sharp corner or edge of the box. Serious hazards also are inherent in the hinged lids, which, if heavy enough, can fall with great force on a child.

At least two children have died and a third came close to death in such accidents. There also is danger that a small child might become trapped inside such a box without proper ventilation.

So, if you are planning to buy or build a toy box for that special child in your family, keep these things in mind:

• Be sure the lid is lightweight and has a flat inner surface with a lip or recessed inner side that could make it difficult for a child to get free, and that it has a device that will hold it open in a raised position so that it will not slam shut of its own weight.

• Check for rough or sharp edges on all metal components and for splinters on the wooden parts.

• Favor those with rounded or padded edges and corners.

• Be sure it is well ventilated — with holes in the lid and at least one side near the top or ventilation holes near the top on two opposite sides or a product with a lid that cannot close completely.

• It should not be possible to lock it.

After you get it home, keep these further precautions in mind:

• Don't put the box in a heavily traveled area.

• Caution your children against running or roughhousing near it.

• Keep the area around the toy chest as free of clutter as possible.

• Don't contribute to the hazard by making the floor area hazardous as with throw rugs on a waxed floor.

But, what if you already own a toy chest with a heavy lid or one that presents a danger of asphyxiation should your child get trapped inside, what can you do?

"You can remove the lid," says the Consumer Products Safety Commission.

Bruno Mulls Convention Policy

San Bruno councilmen were not convinced that a convention attendance policy, designed to limit the number of City Hall personnel who can attend meetings and to set standards for mileage and hotel expenses, should be enacted.

They told Councilman Richard Griffith, who had recommended a 13-point convention policy, that his proposal lacked flexibility and in some instances was unrealistic.

Griffith had complained that San Bruno had allowed an excessive number of city employes to attend the recent League of California Cities Conference in San Diego and had called for a policy to limit attendance in the future.

The councilman suggested that representation to a convention should be limited to one employe from each city department and one member of the City Council and that reimbursement for cost of meals and mileage traveled within the city limits of where a convention is held should not be made.

He also recommended that the city establish a median standard for hotel room expense reimbursement and that all those who attend statewide meetings be compelled to submit a detailed written report on what they learned at the conference.

In a statement to the council, Griffith said, ". . . I believe we have an obligation in these times when many of our elderly taxpayers hardly know where their next meal is coming from to set such a (convention attendance) policy . . ."

Councilman Gary Mondfrans acknowledged that many of Griffith's points were positive, but he said that some of them were unrealistic and tended to discourage attendance at meetings.

Mondfrans said he had no objection to setting a median standard for hotel room expense reimbursements and on mandating that reports be filed by all those who attend conferences.

But he said he would not support a policy that includes no reimbursement for meals and mileage.

Councilman John Barnard argued that a formal policy was not the way to handle convention attendance. He suggested that the council decide what conventions should be attended and who should attend them on an individual basis.

Barnard also said that although he was not one to frequent conferences, he would not want to discourage other City Hall employes from attending them.

Councilman Tony Governale pointed out that recent newspaper accounts of attendance at the League of California Cities conference tended to spawn calls for policies to control attendance in the future.

He said he believes "somehow, San Bruno seemed to be attempting to carry the conscience of all the cities in the county" by proposing a convention attendance policy.

"I am disturbed," said Governale," that this council seems to be responding to newspaper sensationalism."

Griffith admitted that his proposal might contain some extreme measures, but he pointed out that his ideas had been submitted to generate discussion of the subject.

"I agree that some of the points might be excessive, but I would like to salvage some of them," Griffith said.

No motion was made to adopt even same of Griffith's suggestions. However, Monfrans did volunteer to work with the Griffith and City Manager Gerald Minford" to work out some kind of policy."

Review Set

December 17 has been set as the date for reviewing holiday season paintings created by San Mateo County children for possible use in the 1978 sheet of Christmas Seals.

Barry M. Price, president of the sponsoring Lung Association of San Mateo County, said this year's painting activity by the mini-artists is a repeat performance of two past children's art projects from which the 1975 and 1977 Christmas Seals were chosen.

Convention Policy Change?

San Bruno Councilman Richard Griffith recently asked his colleagues to consider a 13-point convention attendance policy that limits the number of City Hall personnel who can attend meetings and conferences ang sets standard for mileage and hotel expenses.

Griffith's proposal comes after several councilmen asked him to develop specific recommendations to tighten conference attendance policies.

At the council meeting on Nov. 8, Griffith questioned the need of sending nine City Hall representatives to the League of California Cities convention in San Diego and called on the council to take steps to limit attendance in the future.

In his written proposal to the council, Griffith stated,

"It has occurred to me that this city really does not have any kind of convention attendance policy at all — and that lack of a policy, by it excessive permissiveness, is most binding on present and future taxpayers.

". . . I believe we have an obligation in these times when many of our elderly taxpayers hardly know where their next meal is coming from to set such a policy and let succeeding councils repeal it if they dare."

Griffith suggests that the following points be included in the policy:

• A special council meeting should be held each year in advance of the annual league session to examine the agenda and determine if it is worth attending at all and to determine by vote the council's official position on resolutions due to come before the convention.

• Without making any evaluation of the present league, "pledge ourselves to use our city's influence for maximum impact on restoring the deliberative and intellectural-resource emphasis on these annual gatherings by the measures of this policy."

• Recommend to the league that centrally-located sites for future conventions — such as Bakersfield or Stockton — be selected.

• Limit representation to any convention to one from each city department, and let the council be considered, for this purpose, as a department.

• Limit every individual of a department to one state-wide conference a year, but not the department as a whole.

• Out-of-state conventions should not be attended by any city official.

• Review and revoke any contract clauses or understandings of department heads in conflict with the last point.

• Refuse city participation in any convention whose delegates are all from within San Mateo County, but where the meeting is held at a site outside the county.

• Prohibit attendance at events where substantial tabs are picked up by private enterprise or certain other tax-supported bodies.

• Establish a median standard for hotel room expense reimbursements for convention trips authorized under this policy.

• Pay mileage on a standard distance to a given city. Travel within the city should be picked up by the delegate, thus encouraging concentration on the central delegate site and the purpose of the convention.

Out-of-Town Conference Doubts

San Bruno Mayor Margaret Kozkowski notes that she has written a letter to all members of the North County Council of Cities asking them to review their votes to approve a spring conference in Carmel.

The mayor, who is chairman of the Council of Cities, said that she wants some indication from North County elected officials of how many persons actually expect to attend the weekend meeting.

She said many members were considering changing the site of the conference to this county.

Several weeks ago, the Council of Cities voted unanimously to hold its conference at the Quail Lodge in Carmel. The meeting was to begin Feb. 18.

At the recent council meeting, Burlingame Councilman Irv Amstrup urged his colleagues to abandon plans for the Carmel meeting and to hold a conference in San Mateo County.

Postal Employe: Workload Forced Him Out

By RICK SULLIVAN

Ollie Kempf may not know it, but he is a manifestation of the adage that life is a circle of events not necessarily identical, but in some ways related.

The hazel-eyed San Brunan gained employment with the San Bruno Post Office during inauspicious times in his city.

After 34 comfortable, satisfying years of serving the only community he's ever really known, he retired recently in the midst of confusion, discontentment and general frustration.

Now with little alacrity, he looks ahead to long days punctuated occasionally by yard work and a short game of golf. During those days, at least for the first few months, he will ponder with some compassion the plight of his colleagues who have inherited what he left behind — an unreasonable workload that he maintains forced him into retirement at the age of 55.

It was two years after he graduated from Burlingame High School that Kempf applied for several clerk position openings at the San Bruno Post Office. Kempf was hired in 1942 to aid some 10 other clerks and carriers in processing an increasing volume of mail generated by "relocation camp" prisoners housed in barracks at the now destroyed Tanforan Park Race Track.

Japanese families, herded into compounds and fated to spend the duration of the war years in captivity, were forced to purchase merchandise through such mail order houses as Montgomery Ward and Sears & Roebuck.

In a crowded storefront office near the corner of Angus and San Mateo avenues, Kempf sorted mail and parcels for the Japanese under the direction of Postmaster Lewis Erbes.

The then sandy-haired youth started at a salary of 65 cents an hour.

Kempf reflects wistfully on the years he worked under Erbes and his successors, Don Morrison, F. Clay Fisher and Donald Rizzo.

He remembers the mail train deliveries from San Francisco and the mail hooks that snatched a canvas pouch from a passing flyer; the number of times the hooks failed, scattering shredded letters along the tracks; and the twice-a-day home deliveries.

But he recalls most vividly the teamwork involved in processing and delivering the mail to his hometown. The days when one worker relied on his fellow worker to function efficiently and when decisions were made by easily accessible, fallible comrades — not by distant machines.

It is not that Kempf wants to brake the wheels of progress. He, indeed, believes mechanization has improved mail service and brought a measurable degree of cost savings.

"In many respects, San Bruno has better mail service today than it ever has had," Kempf says.

But what he does particularly resent is the depersonalization that mechanization has brought with it and the theft of decision-making that so often is the essence of job satisfaction.

Only recently has mechanization touched the San Bruno Post Office. Seven postal clerks recently were transferred to the Airport Mail Facility (AMF) to man huge processing machines that now do the work of scores of men.

The transfer, Kempf maintains, has forced a greater workload on those left at the San Bruno office and general dissatisfaction with working conditions.

"Before this transfer," Kempf says, "the clerks would make the decisions on what mail was processed first. They would determine the priority of the mail. Now the machines make those decisions."

Most San Bruno mail coming from outside the city is now sorted at the AMF and delivered to the local carriers.

"We have lost control over this town's mail," says Kempf. "The routine decisions are being made outside the office. We are no longer a total office."

Although Kempf belives that San Bruno never will be without its own post office, he is convinced that recent developments tend to support his view that the office will be one large warehouse where carriers pick up their mail and where several clerks service the walk-in patrons.

Next June, the post office will move from its present location to a new concrete warehouse-like facility near the Tanforan Park Shopping Center.

Since the clerks have been transferred, Kempf says, the morale of the employes is at an all time low. Not only has the Postal Service not appointed a successor to Rizzo, who resigned earlier this year, but the clerks are being forced to take on an "unreasonable workload." The clerks who remain in San Bruno still have to process the intercity mail.

"Throughout my years with the post office, there have always been difficult times — times of transition and of adjustment," Kempf says, "but I always could see the light at the end of the tunnel. I knew we could make it through the hard times.

"In the months before I retired I had to work sometimes from 8 a.m. til 7:30 p.m. trying to get the work done. But, you know, I could never see that I was accomplishing anything. Work kept stacking up and stacking up. It was very frustrating.

"I retired because I just couldn't take it any longer," he adds. "I truly feel sorry for the guys still there."

Kempf received a call this week from the only supervisor left in the San Bruno office. Kempf says they chatted about the working conditions. Before they concluded their conversation, the retiree offered his former colleague whatever help he could provide.

ROMANTIC ERA RETURN EXPECTED

Hal Prince, Broadway's most successful producer-director, has just returned from six months in Vienna where he directed Elizabeth Taylor in the film version of his stupendous production of "A Little Night Music." It is only his second film in seven years ("Something For Everyone" with Angela Lansbury and Michael York was his first) and he was afraid he'd forgotten everything he learned.

"I'd never met Liz before she came to New York last spring to attend Richard Burton's opening in 'Equus' and discuss terms for a second divorce. But I never had anyone else in mind for the role of the actress," the impish-looking Prince told us at breakfast Wednesday in the Clift Hotel.

"I believe there will be a return to the romantic era with pretty women and lovely costumes. I can't tell you how pleasant and satisfying it is to come home from a hard day's work on the set with the image of all those beautiful girls in my mind."

Name the most successful Broadway musicals including "Cabaret," "Pajama Game," "Damn Yankees," "Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," "Fiddler on the Roof" and they'll be mostly Prince's work. And now he's stretching himself into the movie and opera world with his recent staging of the American premiere of Israeli composer Josef Tal's opera, "Ashmedai" for the New York City Opera and plans to do a new staging of "Marriage of Figaro" for Jules Rudel at the same company.

When he mounted the highly successful production of "Candide" two years ago, he had an idea about involving the audience, getting them closer to the stage even into the orchestra pit but had to gut the Broadway Theater to achieve it.

"I begged the Schuberts to leave it so I could do 'Sweeney Todd, The Barber of Fleet Street,' a grand Guignol 19th-century melodrama that Stephen Sondheim was going to write as an opera and that I would direct. But they made me restore it back to what it was so they could open 'Guys and Dolls' there.

"Now a young guy from Texas named Bobby Geisler has shown me plans for a tension supported tent that can be erected in parking lots that will approximate the environmental stage I want. We hope to open it in Los Angeles in the spring with 'Candide' and forsee it as a touring possibility.

"The nice thing is that Geisler also has the money to finance the project."

He's keen to work in opera because he was turned on by having 104 people onstage and sees his participation as a way of breaking down the separation between opera and theater.

Prince was in San Francisco to see "Pacific Overtures" at the Curran one last time. He'd hoped to send it to several more cities and is disappointed that negotiations to produce it in Japan have broken down. He thought it would also play the Philippines and Hawaii but as of today it is set to close in San Francisco on Dec. 18.

The entire run is sold out and patrons are begging for tickets but Katharine Hepburn is already set to open at the Curran on Dec. 20 so there is no chance of holding it over.

"The play was not well received in New York and I'm so thrilled to see it getting the recognition here that I always felt it should have. The Asian population is so small in New York that we got no support there. And for some reason New Yorkers felt it was more exotic than they were used to.

"People walked past the theater thinking it was a traveling show from Japan with all those Oriental faces on the posters outside. Asians still look foreign to them whereas in San Francisco and Los Angeles people are used to them.

"I never could understand the criticisms of the show, especially those who call it an 'Oriental Amos 'n Andy.' It's an American show, a Broadway musical and I'm very happy with it...and proud," the gregarious, ever-smiling producer added.

"You can get audiences to Pinter plays, they'll even sit still through 'The Cocktail Party' but you can't give them an easy way out with a show by being confused about it. Audiences have to be told they have to think and appreciate being told 'you can enjoy it but you have to participate.'

"That's what theater is all about anyway. It's not a lazy relationship. Arguing when you leave a theater is intrinsic."

Fare Box Filling As Per Schedule

Revenue collections are on schedule for the San Mateo County Transit District, the district board of directors was told at its regular meeting Tuesday night.

General Manager John T. Mauro said the fare box revenue for October was $500,633, accounting for 25 per cent of the district's operating costs. The district presently is operating at about 5 per cent below its projected budget for the year, but some adjustments probably will be needed around the first of the year, Mauro said.

Present contract operations, leasing and some other costs are running over budget, he added.

October was the first month the district hit the half-million-dollar figure for revenues, which means it is on its way to its projected $6 million take for the first year, Mauro went on.

In other business the board:

• Approved a resolution for 15 more used buses, bringing its present purchase plan to 42. The district now has 20 secondhand vehicles coming from Eastshore Lines and from Atlanta, Ga., and 22 from Ft. Worth, Tex., and Hoboken, N.J., to be used here until a fleet of brand new ones is delivered in the next few years.

• Approved a low bid of $4,000 from the San Mateo County Building and General Services Department for architectural and engineering services for the district's South San Francisco and Belmont maintenance bases.

Colma Man Is Slain

San Francisco County Coroner's officials identified the victim as Carlos Matos, 17, of 389 Second Ave., Colma. He leaves his wife of about three weeks, Lorinda.

According to the police report, Matos was riding a motorcycle when a man in a passing car tossed a bottle at him. In the ensuing argument, Matos was stabbed in the chest.

He was taken to Mission Emergency Hospital, where he died several hours later.

SSF Lounge Owners Fined

The operators of "Dot and Andy's" Lounge in South San Francisco were fined and put on court probation Tuesday for bookmaking.

San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Alan W. Haverty fined Dorothy Boido, 50, $500, and her husband, Andy Boido, 51, $250. He reduced their conviction to misdemeanors.

A third defendant, Richard L. Grigg, withdrew his plea after Judge Haverty indicated that he would sentence him to one-year in county jail. A trial will be held.

Grigg was the alleged runner of bookmaking which occurred at the lounge, according to prosecutor Stanley B. Poling.

According to Mrs. Boido's statement to probation officer J. P. Jones, she and her husband began accepting bets on the horse races in order to accommodate their customers.

Trained

Coast Guard Seaman Apprentice Edward A. Cuevas, son of Armand E. Cuevas, of 443 South Mayfair, Daly City, has completed recruit training at the Coast Guard Training Center, Alameda, Calif. A 1974 graduate of Westmoor High School, Daly City, he joined the Coast Guard in May 1975.

Infantryman

Marine Private Aglai B. Alcana, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Augusto Alcana, of 691 Hanover St., Daly City, has completed the infantry combat training course at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif. He joined the Marine Corps in May 1976.
